CLASH OVER MELLEN

6 WOUNDED IN BORDER BATTLE

By International News Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 21.—General Frederick Funston, commanding the United States troops on the border, was advised this morning that three enlisted men of the regular army were killed and six wounded in a fight with Mexicans at Ojo de Aqua early today.

The American soldiers were on border duty when they were attacked by the Mexicans.

Five Mexicans were killed during the fighting, their bodies being found after the American troops had driven off the Mexicans.

The Americans killed were: Sergeant William Shaffer, Troop G, Third Cavalry, and First Class Privates Joyce and McConnell of Company D, Signal Corps.

The wounded, according to advices to General Funston, include Privates Bowmer, Behr, Langland and Kuhlall of Troop G, Third Cavalry, and First Class Sergeant Smith and Corporal Campbell, Company D, Signal Corps.

Ojo de Aqua is near the town of Mission, Texas.

There were fifteen Americans in the attacked party, guarding the village of Ojo de Aqua. There were 100 or more Mexicans in the band that delivered the attack. The Mexicans surrounded the Americans and then began firing upon them from all sides.

Of the Americans only eight had rifles, the others being equipped with service pistols. After vigorous firing the Americans charged and put the Mexicans to flight.

The Mexicans had evidently crossed from the Mexican side early in the night well prepared for the attack. They were discovered before they could deliver a surprise attack, and the firing immediately became hot and heavy.

The commander of Troop G, Lieutenant Edward N. Glass, had a narrow escape, a bullet passing through his hat.

Within five days Mexicans have killed fifteen persons in the vicinity of Brownsville.

General Funston this afternoon wired the War Department at Washington urging the employment of a corps of secret service agents along the border to obtain advance information concerning Mexican raids.

Asquith Gaining, May Return Soon

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Premier Asquith's condition shows steady improvement, it was announced today. It is possible he will be able to resume his work earlier than was expected.

Miss Fitzgerald Loses Watch in Kent Robbery

Miss Agnes Fitzgerald, daughter of ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, was a victim of the robber at the home of ex-Mayor John S. Kent in Brockton last night. Miss Fitzgerald was visiting Miss Helen Kent. Her mesh bag containing a watch and considerable money was stolen.

Miss Mary Hamilton of New York, also a visitor, was robbed of a meshbag containing $49 and several rings.

The robbery occurred while the party was in the dining room. Ex-Mayor Kent today estimated the loss in money and jewelry at $1,000.

500 B. & M. Freight Handlers Strike

Five hundred Boston & Maine freight handlers went on strike this afternoon. The company admits this figure, and the strikers claim more.

Immediately the company sent out notices to all stations and shippers, saying freight for Boston will be received subject to delay only.

Advertisements were also immediately sent to all Boston papers headed "500 Men Wanted."

The men earlier in the day made a demand on the management for a 15 per cent. increase of wages and payment for holiday work.

Pheasant Hunter Peppered by Shot

Michael Hassett, George Temple and Edward Morris, North Cambridge and Somerville men, went pheasant hunting in Lexington today, and Hassett became separated from the others. Temple and Morris thought they saw a bird, and fired. There was a yell, and they rushed into the bushes and found Hassett badly peppered with shot.

Rare October Day, Temperature at 78

The Weather Man estimated today that 100,000 furnace fires, which have languished through the moderate temperature since Sunday, were allowed to go out; for the temperature was up toward the 80 mark—77 at 1 o'clock, 78 at 2. This is twenty degrees above normal.

Ban Shuttle Car Route in Roxbury

After a hearing today, Chairman Macleod of the Public Service Commission announced that the Elevated will not be allowed to continue the present "shuttle car" system on Washington street between Forest Hills and Grove street.

DRISCOLL EXPLAINS CHARGES

Former Governor Eugene N. Foss was put on trial, charged with criminal libel, in the Municipal Court today, and Dennis D. Driscoll, who makes the charge of libel, was the first witness.

Driscoll denied the Foss charges, which he claims were libelous; then under cross-examination something of the workings of the Trades Union Liberty League—of which Driscoll is secretary—was explained.

It was testified that the members of the league are employes in one capacity or another of the liquor interests, and Driscoll was questioned at length as to a meeting in Faneuil Hall when Melvin M. Johnson, attorney for Mr. Foss, claimed was a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act.

SUBSTANCE OF CHARGE.

Judge Parmenter presided at the trial. Mr. Foss sat in the bar enclosure near his attorney. Driscoll, before his testimony, had a seat in the body of the room. John F. Feeney was his counsel.

The substance of the charge against the former Governor is that a letter to District Attorney Pelletier, published in the Boston papers, he claimed that while he was Governor, improper influence had been brought to bear upon him to induce him to appoint Driscoll to the position of chairman of the Prison Commission.

ROME, Oct. 21.—Declaring that he would "Never lay down his sword while Belgium is held in slavery," King Albert has replied to Pope Benedict's tentative peace proposals in the negative.

Try to Flash Human Voice Over Atlantic

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Officials of the Navy Department, last night, attempted for the first time in history to flash the human voice across the Atlantic ocean, it was learned today.

From Arlington wireless station near here a message was sent to the wireless station of Eiffel tower in Paris. The success of the attempt has not yet been learned.

The French officials were notified several days ago that the attempt would be made. They were asked to send word by cable whether they heard the message.

Russians Capture German Positions

By the International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—An important offensive movement has been begun by the Russians north of Pinsk.

Several German positions have been captured by the Russians in the region of Baranovitch, it was officially announced by the Petrograd War Office today, along with 2,552 prisoners, ten machine guns and a piece of artillery.

German troops operating on the Styr River, in Volhynia, have been forced to retreat from Tscharioriah, the Berlin War Office admitted today. They are now making counter-attacks to regain the ground lost to the Russians.

Escaping Germans Reported in New York

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Officers of the United States monitor Tallahassee today reported to the Navy Department that they saw Dr. Koeneck and Lieutenant Koch, the German officers who visited their parole and fled from the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich at Norfolk, Va., in the Pennsylvania station at New York Sunday afternoon.

Brother and Sister Die on Same Day

That Mrs. John Lynch of Danvers and her brother, James Shea of Butte, Mont., died on the same day—October 14—became known today when news of Shea's death reached Danvers.

Judge Would Care for Man's Family

Henry W. Caswell, of Fields court, Melrose, was sentenced to the House of Correction by Judge Riley in the Malden Court for assault on Patrolman Christopher M. Thompson. Caswell pleaded he had a wife and seven children. Judge Riley said the city would look out for his family, and if not, he would personally.

MAY CALL TAFT IN R. R. CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Special Assistant Attorney-General Frank M. Swacker, who today acted as the government's questioner in the criminal prosecution of the former directors of the New Haven Railroad on charges of conspiracy, today asked the court to instruct former President Charles S. Mellen to answer the government's questions more frankly.

"It is perfectly plain," said Mr. Swacker, "that Mr. Mellen is hostile to the government, although he is a government witness."

Mr. Lindabury, of counsel for the directors, arose and asked the court to rebuke Mr. Swacker for his language, saying: "Mr. Mellen is not hostile to the government. He is being asked questions about things that happened as far back as 1907."

Judge Hunt mildly rebuked Mr. Swacker, and Mr. Mellen was permitted to go on with his answers.

CLASH OVER TESTIMONY.

It was regarded as probable today that former President William H. Taft would be called as a witness by the government, and that he would be asked to tell of conversations he had with Lewis Cass Ledyard about the affairs of the New Haven.

George R. Conroy and Charles E. Mann of Boston were subpoenaed today as witnesses. Conroy is a Boston newspaper man and Mann is executive secretary of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission.

Attorneys for the government and the defendants clashed today over Mellen's testimony.

The question arose as to whether Mellen would give all his testimony at one sitting or be called later. Robert L. Batts, for the government, asked that the prosecution be allowed to examine Mellen piecemeal, keeping him on the stand not more than two days the first time.

REPORT KAISER WILL PARDON WOMEN

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A dispatch from Madrid says that King Alfonso has received a message from Emperor William of Germany stating that he will pardon the Countess de Belleville, Mademoiselle Thuller and other Belgians, who had been condemned to death for helping Belgian soldiers to escape.

The Pope had appealed to the Kaiser as well as Alfonso, and the United States through its minister, had requested commutation of the sentence.

The circumstances connected with the execution by the German authorities at Brussels of Miss Edith Cavell, a British nurse, occupy constantly increasing attention in London. The forthcoming publication of the report of Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, on his efforts in Miss Cavell's behalf, is awaited with keen interest. This report will be published in tomorrow morning's newspapers.

The Mail says the report is a long one, and adds:

"This account will strike a note of horror throughout the world. It will tell of the wonderful heroism of a woman who had nursed German wounded. It will tell of the greatest fight for a woman's life that was ever fought, of unavailing efforts of nobles and neutrals to combat the callous secret cunning of the Germans."

The Post publishes today a letter from Miss Cavell's cousin concerning her devotion to work as a nurse.

"My cousin's intense devotion to the alleviation of suffering caused her to devote her life to nursing in Brussels," the letter says. "She voluntarily remained there to continue her work when the city was taken by the Germans. She would have nursed a German with as much tender care as an Englishman.

"In a letter to me she said: 'We have no wounded here now. The allies do not come here and the Germans are sent back to their own country. The few that remain are nursed by their own countrywomen, so we are denied the great consolation of being of use in our own special way.'

"She allowed the womanly quality of compassion to get the better of prudence and self-interest. For this she suffered untold miseries and died a martyr's death."

Bethlehem at New High Mark of $599 a Share

Bethlehem Steel made a startling rise on the New York Stock Exchange this morning.

In two transactions it advanced 70¾ points, selling at 599¾. It closed yesterday at 529, opened this morning at 550, an immediate gain of 21 and then sold on the next transaction 45¾ higher.

In February last this stock, upon which no dividend is paid, was selling around $46 a share. Its valuation has since increased approximately $564 a share.

LEADERS OF I. W. W. AT WORK

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 21.—Representatives of the I. W. W. arrived in Nashua today and announced that their organization will make a strong effort to induce the strikers to join their ranks.

Organizer Caruso and two others who arrived today, said Joseph J. Ettor, who led the Lawrence strike, and William D. Heywood, the famous I. W. W. leader, would come tonight.

Caruso addressed a big mass meeting of strikers at noon, but was given a cool reception. He was told by the strikers' committee that the I. W. W. would do better if it kept out of Nashua.

Former Mayor William H. Barry, counsel for the strikers, notified the strikers' committee that if the strikers allowed the I. W. W. to influence them, he would decline to represent them.

NEW DEATH CLEWS.

The police today searched the city for a number of men they claim were implicated in the fatal attack on James Stivic, a Greek, who died from injuries sustained at the hands of alleged strike rioters.

Adam Sharpie is under arrest on the charge of assaulting Stivic. The police early today subjected him to the "third degree" and they claim he made a confession, naming several men who took part in the assault.

Mrs. Marie Venecius, who claims she was beaten on the head by a policeman's club in the hands of Mayor Crowley, today sought to retain a lawyer to bring criminal action against the Mayor, but without success.

A committee of 15 strikers also sought to secure counsel to prosecute the Mayor. They visited Marcel Theirault, accompanied by Mrs. Venecius, who refused to take their case on the ground that they already had counsel.

BARASKI RELEASED.

P. J. Gaffney as attorney who is assisting Mr. Barry in handling the strikers' cases today condemned the police and their methods, claiming that they overstepped their rights in many ways.

Costas Baraski, one of the three men arrested today charged with being implicated in the assault on Stivic, was later released.

Attorney Gaffney complained to the court today of the refusal of the police to allow him to see his clients in private.

A conference began today between Attorney Barry and the agent of the Jackson Mill, in an effort to end the strike.

AEROPLANE COLLAPSES OVER MARSHES AT WEST LYNN

Two men were killed when an aeroplane in which they were flying over the West Lynn marshes collapsed at a height of twelve hundred feet and fell to the ground this afternoon.

The Saugus police said the men were instantly killed. They believed the men were Captain Chauncey Redding, instructor at the Saugus Aviation School, and a passenger named Smith.

The accident occured near Baker's Hill, Cliftondale, and the plane fell in a slightly slanting line to the marshy ground.

MELLEN AGAIN ON STAND IN THE TRIAL OF NEW HAVEN DIRECTORS

bury, for the defendants, strenuously opposed this, demanding that Mellen give all his evidence and submit to cross-examination without a break. Judge Hunt said he would rule in the matter later.

For more than an hour Mellen continued his description of New England transportation lines, as they were a quarter of a century ago. His memory for detail was astonishing. The amused millionaires listened in open mouthed wonder and commented on the remarkable memory.

WONDERFUL MEMORY.

Speaking of one road, Mellen mentioned Rochester. N. H., as a point on it.

"What kind of a town is Rochester?" asked Assistant Attorney-General Swacker.

"Oh, it is a nice little town, all cut up by railroad crossings," Mellen answered.

Mellen gave all his morning testimony standing as he had frequently to refer to the big maps.

The first interruption of the day came when Lindabury strongly objected when Mellen was asked to tell of a conversation he had with Charles H. Clark, former president of the New Haven.

"They were planning to reduce the running time on the Boston & Albany and on the Shore line, but to not reduce it on the New England and Williamantic railway," said Mellen, "I went to President Clark to protest. I told him it would be unfair and cause trouble."

Lindabury objected, basing his protest on the same grounds used yesterday that the prosecution could not go back further than 1911, three years prior to the indictment.

Judge Hunt overruled the objection. Mellen served as general traffic manager of the New York & New England Railway seven months from April to November, 1892. Then Charles P. Clark, president of the New Haven made Mellen second vice-president of the New Haven in charge of traffic. Mellen was asked again about conversations with Clark about changing schedules.

LINDABURY OBJECTS.

"Your Honor," shouted Lindabury, "the government is attempting to jump into the middle of this case. They must first prove there was a conspiracy before attempting to give details of its working."

The objection was overruled.

"What were your duties with the New Haven?" Swacker asked.

"I was in charge of traffic."

Mellen admitted he did not have very much to do as intimated that Clark employed him to get him away from the New York and New England.

Mellen told in great detail of the leasing by the New Haven of several New England lines, including the Connecticut river railway. He took charge of this railway, on the order of President Clark.

Swacker returned to the charge of schedules on the Boston & Albany, Shore line and New York and New England between Springfield and Providence.

Lendabury again objected and Swacker retorted that Lindabury was "showing hostility." Lindabury put in a denial and Judge Hunt mildly rebuked the government attorney.

Mellen interrupted his recital long enough to identify many letters, which the government will place in evidence thereby increasing the government's exhibits to around one thousand.

HEAR DRISCOLL ON FOSS LIBEL CHARGES

the case opened, former Mayor Fitzgerald entered the court room. Attorney Feeney rose and joined him, and they engaged in a conference for a consultation.

Mr. Feeney later returned and proceeded to open his case. He read, or caused to be read articles and extracts from Boston papers on which the libels attributed to Mr. Foss are alleged.

Driscoll was then called to the stand, and the testimony proceeded thus:

QUESTION DRISCOLL.

Q—Did you see Governor Foss about anything in 1913? A—Only about pardon for certain persons in the House of Correction.

Q—You were Deputy Penal Commissioner of Boston in 1913? A—Yes.

Q—Did you ask Mr. Foss to appoint you to the Prison Commission? A—I never saw Mr. Foss about the place.

Q—Did you ever promise Mr. Foss you would end the strike in 1913 if he would appoint you? A—Absolutely no.

Q—Do you receive any money from anybody except from the Trades Union Liberty League? A—No.

Q—Do you visit the offices of the Massachusetts Brewers' Company in Pemberton square? A—Twice in twelve years.

Q—Did you ever receive a salary of $2,500 and $25,000 in addition from the brewers? A—I never received any money whatever.

Q—Did you know your name was mentioned for the prison board? A—Not until this trial.

ASKED ABOUT LEAGUE.

To a question as to the nature and purposes of the Trades Union Liberty League, Driscoll explained the membership is made up of liquor trade employes. During his denials of the previous questions, he had faced Foss, and the latter eyed him steadily throughout his testimony. He was cross examined by Attorney Johnson as to the meeting of the Trades' Union Liberty League in Faneuil Hall, August 25, which Mr. Johnson contended was a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act.

Q—After May 30, 1915, up to the date of this complaint, how many meetings did the league have held? A—None but this of August 29.

Q—Before the meeting, did you see in the hall Messrs. Pfaff and Casey? A—Yes, I saw Pfaff.

Q—Did you know he was president of the Massachusetts Breweries Company? A—No.

Q—Did you know he was an officer of the company? A—I thought so.

Q—Did you meet anybody else with Mr. Pfaff? A—Yes, a Mr. Casey.

Q—You seated them in the front pew, didn't you? A—No such thing. I left them standing.

Q—Who introduced you? A—Andrew C. Hughes, our president.

Q—Who opened the meeting? A—I did.

Q—Who spoke besides yourself? A—Congressmen Gallivan and several others.

TELLS OF MEETING.

Q—Did you or any other speaker mention Foss. A—I think so.

Q—Who? A—Mr. Hughes.

Q. Did Congressman Gallivan? A—I don't think so.

Q—Did you? A—I don't think so.

Q—You saw in the papers that you did? A—I saw it.

Q—You're opposed to prohibition? A—Yes.

Q—You knew Mr. Foss advocated prohibition? A—Yes.

Q—You knew others were advocating prohibition? A—Yes, Shaw and Deitrick.

Q—And not speakers advocate the defeat of Foss and Deitrick at this meeting? A—No, sir.

Q—Was Guy Ham mentioned? A—No, except that a letter from him was read.

Q—You advocated the defeat of Ham, didn't you? A—No, sir. I urged them to do as their consciences dictated and not be hypocrites.

A letter was then read, which had been sent to Ham inviting him to speak at the meeting; and Ham's reply, declining to speak, was also read.

Q—Do you know Joseph Proetzle, president of the Ohio Union Breweries Company? A—No.

Q—Do you know Joseph Proetzle, international organizer of the Trades Union Liberty League? A—Yes.

LAWYERS IN DEBATE.

Q—Do you not know them as the same men? A—No.

At this point Attorney Feeney interrupted. "I will admit the facts of this meeting," he said, "I will admit that speakers were invited and heard in opposition to prohibition. I will admit we did not file a certificate at the State House. We were not required to. That will end this burlesque on temperance. I will admit any claim of corruption or illegality at this meeting, but the question of malice will come later."

Driscoll was excused from the witness stand long enough to call Edward F. Hamlin, executive secretary of the State House, who testified that Martin M. Lomasney, brother of Driscoll, while acting as secretary of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, wrote him letters advocating the appointment of Driscoll as prison commissioner and protesting against the appointment of Frank L. Randall to that position, because Randall was not a resident of the State.

Driscoll was recalled and denied that he had any knowledge of these letters, not being sent until the present proceeding.

REPORT JAPS ARE FIGHTING FOR CZAR

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Japanese in large numbers are participating in the war on the eastern front, according to advices from Vienna. Correspondents in Galicia say that the Japanese troops are compelled to discard their own uniforms and wear Russian ones.

Great quantities of Japanese arms and ammunition are also being used by the Russians. The following official announcement from the Austrian War Office bears upon the subject:

"In the vicinity of Putilowa, Russia, our troops destroyed a Japanese Russian train. We captured two machine guns, a great amount of Japanese arms and ammunition and other material."

NEW ITALIAN DRIVE.

Greece is heavily reinforcing its army on the Bulgarian front, according to reports from Lausanne. Important infantry and artillery forces have been sent to the border. Trenches are being constructed, the dispatches say.

Correspondent of Swiss newspapers in Italy telegraphed today that General Count Cadorna, commander of the Italian armies, had begun an advance with his full forces to seize the Austrian provinces and give succor to Serbia.

While the British censor permitted transmission of press dispatches stating that England had offered the Island of Cyprus to Greece to win its support for the entente powers, no official comment or confirmation was forthcoming today. It is apparent, however, that the Balkan situation as involves Greece and Roumania is approaching a "show down." These countries must declare their position.

BULGARS MENACE USKUB.

Uskub and Kumanova, two important Serbian towns on the Salonica-Nish railway, have been evacuated by their inhabitants as a result of the rapid advance of the Bulgarians, according to reports from Athens.

It is believed King Ferdinand's troops will occupy both cities within a few hours.

A great battle between the Serbians and the Anglo-French allies on one hand and the Bulgarians on the other has developed on the heights of Vissegna and Rechenitza. The Bulgarians are trying to cut their way through toward Monastir.

In the Negotin region, west of Strumitsa, the Bulgarians are attacking fiercely, but the Serbs claim that the assaults have been repulsed.

The Serbians, after abandoning Istib and Kotchana, fell back toward Uskub, which is at the junction of the Salonica-Nish railway and the line running south from Mitrovitsa. Shortly after the Serbians retreated all communication between the Serbian army and Salonica has been cut.

"The pressure of the army in the North is very strong."

FRENCH REPULSE THREE ATTACKS NEAR RHEIMS

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—A mighty effort to break through the French lines east of Rheims is being made by the Germans.

Following a fierce bombardment, three fierce infantry attacks were launched, but all were repulsed, according to an official communique issued by the French War Office today. The Germans suffered enormous losses, the communique states.

The attacking forces were sent forward in close formation over a five-mile front and were mowed down in heaps by the deadly rifle and machine gun fire of the French.

The text of the communique from the War Office, follows:

"Following the bombardment reported last night to the east of Rheims on a front of some eight or nine kilometres (4.96 to 5.58 miles), which extends between the Butte of Tir and Prunay, the Germans renewed the attack, which had pitifully been checked the night before in the same region. Despite the violence of the preparatory artillery fire, and the density of the clouds of suffocating gas, the enemy received another check.

"The enemy tried three times to penetrate our positions. The attacking troops were cut down by the fire of our machine guns and the storm of shells from our artillery. They were finally stopped before our wire entanglements and were not able to reach at a single point our first line of trenches.

"During the night we likewise repulsed a German attack against our positions in Givenchy Forest, northeast of Souches.

"In Lorraine, a surprise attack attempted by the enemy against our observation posts to the east of Moncel, were completely broken up.

"There is nothing to report on the rest of the front."

TURKS CHARGE THEIR ENEMIES WITH ATROCITIES

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Charges that Greeks, Armenians and Russians murdered, pillaged and attacked women and girls of all ages along the Caucasus frontier in Turkey were laid before Secretary Lansing this afternoon by Abdul Bak Hussein, secretary of the Turkish Legation.

Scores of affidavits were presented with the charges.

Armenians and Greeks stabbed women through the breasts so that they could not nurse their babies one affidavit alleged. Another declared that Turkish women had been driven over cliffs to fall hundreds of feet to their death.

Mussulmans, it was alleged, were hacked to pieces and their bodies were suspended at street corners to frighten the populace of the different towns.

The charges were believed to be in answer to the allegations that the Turks had practiced cruelty on the Armenians.

Germans Admit British Sink Six Ships in Baltic

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—Six German merchant steamers have been sunk in the Baltic Sea by British submarines, the Admiralty admitted today. It was stated that in addition to sending Zeppelin airships to hunt down the submarines "other counter measures" had been taken, which were expected to limit the damage caused by the British raiders.

The losses, it was said, however, caused no interruption in German commerce in the Baltic, and merchant steamers continue to ply between Scandinavian and German ports.

Movement of German troops by rail continues. No transport has been sunk.

Danube Navigation Halted by Mines

By the International News Service.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 21.—All navigation on the Danube from Belgrade to the Roumanian frontier has been suspended on account of mines. Before the Serbian drive, mines from the Danube front they mined the stream wherever it touched Serbian soil, and the Germans have not yet been able to clear it.

CHARGE BULGARS WITH SERB ATROCITIES

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Bulgarian troops are accused in dispatches from Athens and Bucharest of committing revolting atrocities in Serbia. They are charged with killing and torturing helpless prisoners, both men and women. Similar brutalities are charged to the German troops, who invaded Serbia from the north.

A dispatch to the Petit Journal states that when the Serb minister at Bucharest protested to the American minister there against the atrocities of the German troops and requested the United States government to join in the protest, he presented evidence as to specific cases, in which the Serbian troops had violated the laws of humanity and civilized warfare.

"The male population of Belgrade was completely exterminated by the Germans," says a message from Turin. "Women were victims of the most horrible violations. Some more than eighty years old were carried off as prisoners into Austria. All this was done with the object of terrorizing the Slavic inhabitants."

"Bulgarian troops systematically massacre the civil population and burn the towns and cities of Serbia," says an Athens dispatch. "Indescribable atrocities were committed in the Timok region and in New Serbia. Hundreds of men were shot, hanged or burned alive. Children were mutilated in a most abominable manner, or butchered with refinements of torture.

JOHNSON SAYS BABIES CAUSE HIGH TAXES

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Professor Joseph French Johnson, dean of New York University's finance school, gave the Mills Legislative Tax Committee a surprise at its hearing which continued today. Invited to express his views as to ways of increasing the State's revenue, he advanced unusual ideas on matrimony, birth rate and allied subjects.

Senator Boylan, presiding, leaned forward in astonishment to exclaim: "Surely you are not serious?"

The speaker declared that he was. The declaration which startled Senator Boylan and his associates came out in the course of the speaker's plea for equal taxes for married men and bachelors. He favored an income tax and said:

FOR BIRTH CONTROL.

"I would not exempt married men. I could not give preference to the man who is married.

"I do not believe it is a good thing to encourage matrimony by lowering taxation. I would discourage it by making him pay a heavier tax.

"We should not do anything to encourage matrimony and child bearing. Men should not be permitted to marry until they can convince some central authority that they are able to support children. The birth rate should be controlled.

"I am a confirmed disciple of Malthus. I believe the awful war in Europe is being fought because the race has rejected his doctrines."

"Don't you think the population would decrease if we adopted his theories?" Senator Boylan asked.

"Never. Nature would take care of that," replied Professor Johnson.

Later at his home Dean Johnson elaborated his views to an AMERICAN reporter, saying:

"I am, as I said, a believer in the Malthusian doctrine. There are too many children being brought into the world without thought. There ought to be some public opinion aroused against large families. The man who is the father of twelve children ordinarily is not a benefactor of the State, city or nation. He is a detriment. It is such men who multiply taxation.

Dean Johnson's Marriage Views

Dean Joseph French Johnson of New York University's Finance School says:

Matrimony should not be encouraged.

Married men should not be taxed more than bachelors.

The size of families should be limited by law.

Colonel Roosevelt is wrong to encourage large families.

Europe is at war because Malthus was not believed.

It is the children of such families who fill the poorhouses and the asylums.

GIVES INSTANCE.

"I doubt whether families ever can be regulated by law. But we should cease, as Theodore Roosevelt does, holding up the father of a large family as an example to be followed.

"It is an easy thing for a man worth nothing at all who wants to marry a certain girl to get her consent and then pay fifty cents for a marriage license. But the result of that marriage is pretty surely a child. He has little or nothing to support it, and it is brought into the world with no future, little chance of getting a proper education, and a small chance even of being properly fed.

"We do not generally realize it, but the church is responsible for large families. In times past the church wanted large families in order to increase its numbers. The idea still prevails. Even my wife is opposed to my ideas. She feels that to restrict birth we would be interfering with divine laws. I do not agree with that.

"Take this European war. It is caused by land hunger. Germany's population increased too fast. The Kaiser wanted men to fill his armies. The population finally became so great that the country was unable to support it.

"The Kaiser's country began to expand. They established colonies. As the colonies grew population increased, and it was incumbent upon the government to find an outlet for them and markets for their product. That, I believe, is the cause of the war that is devastating Europe."

Wreck Ties Up the New York Central

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—A freight wreck on the New York Central, near East Creek, east of Little Falls, tied up traffic over all tracks for several hours this morning and incidentally gave rise to rumors that the Central's crack train, the Twentieth Century Limited, had gone into the ditch. A bursting airhose on a freight train caused several cars to crumple and spread over the tracks. While the wreckage was being cleared away the passenger traffic over the Central was diverted to the West Shore between Harbor and Hoffmans.

English Women Dressing as Men

By International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Woman's clothing is being worn less and less in England as a result of the entrance of women into the field of what was men's work before the war. Women farmworkers, letter carriers, porters, munition factory workers, bus conductors and chauffeurs may be seen any day garbed in regulation trousers. Buffragettes are advocating the universal use of men's attire among women.

Banks Would Abolish Comptroller's Office

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The abolition of the office of comptroller of the currency is the object of a movement among bankers of the United States, which will come to a head when Congress meets. When the Federal Reserve act was passed, creating the Federal Reserve Board to examine and otherwise supervise member banks, bankers took the position that continuance of the comptroller's office would result in the duplication of work.

GERMAN WIFE OF EX-M. P. ARRESTED

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A sensation has been caused in the north country, says the Evening News, by the arrest of the wife of William J. D. Burnyeat, Liberal member of Parliament for Whitehaven from 1906 to 1910.

Mrs. Burnyeat is a German, daughter of Colonel Retzaff of Berlin. The couple own a fine house on the Irish sea coast near Whitehaven, which recently was raided by a German submarine. It was alleged the submarine was guided by signals from the shore.

Searchlight on Chelsea Police Auto Finds Man

The searchlight on the Chelsea auto police patrol led to the arrest of John P. Luzzatto, of No. 175 Winnisimmet street, Chelsea.

Early today the police were told there was a burglar in the premises of Caplin & Spack, No. 192 Second street. The police could find nothing wrong. Finally the auto patrol wagon mounted a steep hill near by and played its searchlight on the building. The rays disclosed Luzzatto hiding on the roof, behind a chimney.

Luzzatto declined to come down, so the police procured a ladder, and Patrolmen Cass, Duggan and Finn lifted him down. In court Luzzatto was held under bonds of $1,000 by Judge Hosmon.

WANTED MAYOR TO FIND HER AN ESCORT

The outer-guard at Mayor Curley's office in City Hall was almost swept off his feet today, when a pretty young maiden from Springfield drifted in with a request that the Mayor provide her with an acceptable escort for a sight-seeing tour of the city.

"Everyone at home says that Mayor Curley is so lovely!" she lisped into the City Hall policeman's ear. "Just tell him that I am from Springfield; that I am a stranger in a strange city; that I want him to find me some nice young man to show me around, and that I will be ever so much obliged for the favor."

The City Hall policeman told her that Mayor Curley was out of town, but offered, as a substitute, Standish Willcox of Mayor Curley's staff. She declined the offer.

Wear Prosperity Overcoat, Men, to Be in Style!

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Women will no longer have a monopoly on the art of beautifying themselves with clothes. The turn of "mere man" has come.

The latest thing in male fashion is an overcoat to be known as the "prosperity overcoat." It will be made of smooth cloth, only thirty-seven inches long, with a flare to nearly 100 inches around the bottom and in case of a stout man fully three yards.

The coat will be double-breasted with nine big pearl buttons on each side, oval lapels and a velvet collar, and will hang from the shoulders like a cape.

A prosperity frock coat will also be worn with the top coat.

CURED HIMSELF OF DRINKING

Los Angeles Man Gives Out a Simple Home Recipe That Banished His Desire for Liquor.

Mr. Earl A. Smith, living at 6154 S. Grant Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif., cured himself of the liquor habit with a simple home recipe. In a recent statement Mr. Smith said: "I took two high priced treatments for the liquor habit, both of which failed. Then I heard of the following simple recipe which I tried. It quickly banished my desire for liquor and greatly benefited my health. To 2 oz. of water add 20 grains of muriate of ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and 10 grains of pepsin. Take a teaspoonful three times a day. It is perfectly harmless and as it has no taste, color or smell it can be given secretly in coffee, tea, milk or in food. Any druggist can get up this recipe at very little cost, and it is a wonderful remedy."

WALSH STATES HIS STAND ON MILK ISSUE

Governor Walsh invading the western part of the State explained what he had done for agriculture, and particularly the milk industry, at Democratic rallies in Williamstown, North Adams, Adams and Pittsfield.

Governor Walsh said in part:

My Republican opponent, who has been within a few days in this section of the State, devoted a great deal of his time to a discussion of the milk question.

His talk about arranging "conference" to deal with the problem reminds me of the old saying that talk is cheap because the Republican candidate under cover of this vague promise of further talk, has failed to offer, or avoided offering, a single definite suggestion to deal with this great question.

He referred to my veto of the Elite Milk Bill, but he carefully avoided stating whether he, if elected, would veto this bill which threatens destruction to the milk industry of the State.

McCALL MUST TAKE STAND.

He cannot stand with the farmers and against them in this campaign. The men and women who are struggling for a livlihood on Massachusetts farms have the right to know whether the Republican candidate will, if elected, sign or veto this bill.

Does my Republican opponent deny that the so-called Elite Milk Bill, which I vetoed, would have compelled any farmer on three weeks' notice from some State inspector to remodel his building and equipment, no matter how excellent his milk product might be, and does he deny that this would have completely ruined the milk industry of Massachusetts and that it would have raised the price of milk to the consumer?

In my inaugural message of 1914 I called attention to the steady decline of milk production in our State and urged that a public inquiry be made into the causes of the decline.

ASKED FOR AN INQUIRY.

Again, during the recent session of the Legislature of 1915, on two separate occasions, I urged the Legislature to take some action on this matter. I did more than that; I prepared and submitted to the Legislature an order and asked for its immediate adoption.

In the face of facts which I then laid before the Legislature all action was refused; and I recall to my Republican opponent that this Legislature was controlled in both branches by the members of his party.

It is not, therefore, proper that the farmers of the State should ask my opponent how he can explain this action on the part of a Legislature overwhelmingly Republican in both houses?

I have shown by my repeated efforts for legislation to remove the evils to which I have referred, just where I stand. Unlike my opponent I am not taking any middle course or dodging behind the word "conference."

Governor Walsh left Pittsfield early today to speak during the day as follows: Westboro, 9:30 a. m.; Hopkinton, 10:15 a. m.; Ashland, 10:45 a. m.; Holliston, 11:15 a. m.; Sherborn, 11:45 a. m.; Weston, 12:15 p. m.; Waltham Watch Works, 12:45 p. m.; Beverly City Hall, 8 p. m.; Manchester Town Hall, 8:30 p. m.; Gloucester, 9 p. m.

ACID EXPLOSION BURNS TWO IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Oct. 21.—Hundreds of persons on Essex street were horrified to see William Mosher of Emerson street, Boston, run across Lawrence street, a flaming torch. His clothing was a mass of flames.

He finally extinguished the flames himself by rolling over in the wet mud, but not until he was so badly burned that his name was placed on the danger list at the Lawrence General Hospital.

Frank Legendre of Lowell street, was also badly burned when acids exploded in a painter's shack on a vacant lot opposite the partly built Empire Theatre, in which Mosher and Legendre were working. The shed and all the extra clothing of the men employed on the new theatre was destroyed. Mosher's trousers were completely burned off and it was necessary for firemen to wrap their rubber coats about him until the arrival of the ambulance.

Ford Likened to Chinaman, Sans Pigtail, by T. R.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—Fred Cardway, of the Packard Motor Car Company, has made public Theodore Roosevelt's opinion of Henry Ford, because the manufacturer declared himself for peace and no armament.

According to Colonel Roosevelt, Mr. Ford "would make a good Chinese citizen of the old type, but has no business to possess American citizenship holding the views that he does."

The former President finishes his opinion with "He ought to wear a pig tail, it would be appropriate."

Mr. Ford is attending the exposition in San Francisco and does not know what the pugnacious former President has said about him. His opinion of Roosevelt is expected as soon as he returns

SAN FRANCISCO TO WELCOME ABERDEENS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—Elaborate plans are being laid for the entertainment of the Marquis and Marchioness of Aberdeen, now en route here to visit the Panama Pacific Exposition after enthusiastic visits to Boston and to Toronto and other Canadian cities.

They arrive here Saturday, October 30. On the following day, the Marchioness is to address the congregation of the Presbyterian church and in the afternoon will talk to the Y. W. C. A. at the Exposition. On Monday there will be a large public meeting and reception at the California Club.

Tuesday the Marchioness will be given a luncheon and a dinner, and later will take part in a civic centre program. Wednesday she addresses the Chinese. In the evening she will be given a ball and reception at the exposition.

Thursday there will be two mass meetings. One in the afternoon, under the auspices of Episcopal Women, and an "All America" meeting in the evening. Friday is "Oakland Day" and Saturday is "Napa County Day."

Tuesday, November 9, Lord and Lady Aberdeen will be tendered a luncheon by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst. She will spend the night at the Hearst home, "The Hacienda."

22-Year Separation Ends in Divorce

Having been separated from her for twenty-two years, William Daly of Cambridge has secured a divorce from Margaret Daly. He alleged desertion. She said she left him to avoid being beaten and because of her disapproval of his alleged attentions to another woman. On the night of her marriage she said she found the other woman with her arms around her husband's neck. On other occasions she said she saw them together.

Sarah Bernhardt Seen in Film Play

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The first acting done by Sarah Bernhardt since the loss of one of her legs by amputation last Summer was shown in motion pictures exhibited privately. The film was taken in France. The film itself was so arranged before it was sent to this country that all evidences of the actress's lameness, because of her artificial leg, have been deleted. So the film, as it reached America, never shows the actress walking.

More Heavy Duty Electric Trucks For The Battery Service System

On August 27th last, we delivered to the Burton-Furber Coal Co., of Boston, a 5-ton Electric coal truck. This was the first G. V. coal truck to operate under the Battery Service System in Boston. Within 60 days this Company ordered two duplicates of the first truck, so well satisfied were they with its performance. This proves that the Battery Service System of the General Vehicle Company is a practical aid to the Electric truck operator.

(The dumping body on this G. V. Truck is operated by electricity.)

And now comes the first order from one of the big "national" corporations. The H. J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh, operating G. V. Electrics in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, etc., have just ordered 4 more. At least one of these (3½ ton trucks) will be assigned to Boston to operate under the Battery Service System.

G. V. sales grow daily. And in cities enjoying the Battery Service System a large percentage of new G. V. users specify that their trucks be equipped for the System. Remember, you buy chassis without battery, saving from 25% to 38% over the complete chassis price. You are assured of practically unlimited mileage, at a flat rate per mile, which rate decreases as the monthly mileage increases.

DANGER TO YOUTH

By HOWARD NOBLE

IF THE PUBLIC UNDERSTOOD what nation-wide prohibition really means—the sort of "nation-wide" the Anti-Saloon League is trying to foist upon the country—the entire movement would die a speedy death. Millions of earnest men and women have given it support in the belief that it seeks to abolish the use of liquor, or at least that it would lessen the evils of intemperance. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Under nation-wide prohibition drinking in the home would greatly increase. Drinking clubs would spring up by thousands and tens of thousands all over the country, and the protection which the law now affords the young and the weak would be withdrawn. As to what nation-wide prohibition really is, listen to Capt. R. P. Hobson, author of the resolution, speaking in its behalf on the floor of the House, Dec. 22, 1914:

Home Distilleries

"We do not say that a man shall not drink. We ask for no sumptuary action. We do not say that a man shall not have or make liquor in his own home for his own use. Nothing of that sort is involved in this resolution. We only touch the sale."

In other words, here is a system of "prohibition" which permits the unlimited manufacture and importation of liquors for "private use." There lies the insincerity of the whole proposition. If prohibition were an honest measure, its sponsors would have sanctioned the Mann amendment which struck out the words "for sale," thus forbidding the manufacture of liquors or having them in possession. But Mr. Hobson and his friends are quite aware that if that were attempted nation-wide prohibition as an issue would last about one week—or only until such time as their constituents might require to register a vigorous protest.

State-wide a Failure

No one has more succintly summed up the evils of nation-wide prohibition, from the viewpoint of social dangers, than Congressman Ernest W. Roberts of Chelsea. This utterance is the more interesting because of the fact that Congressman Roberts is personally in sympathy with the principle of total abstinence and is affiliated with organizations seeking that end. In a letter explaining why he voted against the Hobson resolution in Congress last December, he said:

"I have had some experience in States that were 'dry' either by statute or constitutional prohibition, both North and South, and I think anyone who has had experience in those States will agree with me that prohibition did not prohibit, but that drunkenness, pauperism and crime were still rampant; and that, furthermore, the difficulty in some instances in obtaining liquors had led to drug-forming habits that doctors say are far worse than drunkenness.

A Menace to Youth

"Mr. Hobson states in substance that the open saloon is responsible for teaching young people the liquor habit. In all States where the sale of liquor is regulated of which I have any knowledge, the State laws regulate the sale of liquors to minors, and I believe are pretty generally enforced. It is not my observation that young people are today taught the liquor habit in open saloons, but rather in the homes and clubs. With alcohol permitted under the Hobson Resolution, I do not believe there would be any lessening of drunkenness or any greater shutting off of the young from temptation. On the contrary, I believe more young people would be subjected to the influence of drink where it was manufactured and used in the home."

"I incline to the opinion that a moderate use of wine and beer is not injurious to grown, healthy men and can be permitted without danger."—Privy Medical Councilor Jaffe, M. D., Director Pharmacological Inst., Koenigsberg, Ger.

The meeting will be managed by the Massachusetts Branch of the National Security League, 30 Congress Street, Boston. Guy Murchie, Chairman; George S. Mumford, Treasurer; Frederic L. Woods, Executive Secretary.

GOVERNOR WALSH WILL PRESIDE

Speakers, Senator John W. Weeks, A. Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University, Richard C. Maclaurin, President Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Hon. Frederic R. Coudert of New York City and Professor R. M. Johnston of Harvard University. Also

MOVING PICTURE SHOWING THE BOMBARDMENT OF NEW YORK CITY,

kindly furnished by the Vitagraph Company from the "Battle Cry of Peace."

MEN AND WOMEN WELCOME. ALL SEATS FREE

WE BELIEVE that our country lacks adequate protection against sudden military attack such as the great war now in progress has proved to be a very real danger, menacing every independent nation.

WE BELIEVE that protection can only be given by the whole people acting together under the general government.

WE BELIEVE that the cities on the Coast, and especially Boston and New York, could at the present moment be seized with little difficulty by an active enemy, and that the lives and property of every one of us are in danger unless the general government acts with intelligence and promptness.

WE BELIEVE that it is our paramount duty to arouse the whole people to support such a demand for National defense as will compel Congress to enact a complete defensive programme and at once.

DEMONSTRATION OF MILITARY LIFE IN CAMP ON BOSTON COMMON by details of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, on Friday, October 22nd, 1915, from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS BELIEVE CAUSE WILL CARRY BAY STATE

The prediction that Woman Suffrage will win at the polls in Massachusetts on Nov. 2, by a majority of from 25,000 to 50,000 votes was made today by Mrs. Gertrude H. Leonard, one of the leaders for the "Cause."

"We are not discouraged over the result in New Jersey," said Mrs. Leonard. "The New Jersey defeat will only add an incentive for the men voters to make it carry her."

On the other hand, Mrs. John Balch, chief leader of the "Antis" predicts that suffrage will be snowed under by a majority of 100,000 votes.

"Ninety percent of the women do not want to vote and the men know it," declared Mrs. Balch. "The defeat of the amendment in New Jersey is only a forerunner of what is going to happen here."

Speaking of the New Jersey returns, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, president of the State organization for suffrage, said:

"What leaders like President Wilson and Thomas A. Edison see now, the rank and file will see later. The question is better understood here in Massachusetts."

JOURNEY TO WORCESTER.

The suffragists are making a whirlwind campaign, but the opponents to the cause are also very active all over the State.

Attired in costumes worn half a century ago, Miss Florence Luscomb and Miss Mary Frances Bolles left suffrage headquarters today in the famous Lucy Stone carriage bound over the road to Worcester, to attend the exercises on Worcester Common, Saturday, commemorating the sixty-fifth anniversary of the First National Woman Suffrage Rights Convention. Miss Luscomb wore the identical bonnet worn by Lucy Stone at this convention.

Several more believers in the cause were on hand to bid them good-by. The women took with them letters from suffrage leaders to the Mayor of Newton and the Mayor of Worcester and to the officials of the towns through which they pass.

SPEECHES ALONG WAY.

They were to have been accompanied by Miss Marjorie Bedinger, who was to go along on foot, but Miss Bedinger failed to appear and the start was made without her.

Stops with speeches in favor of suffrage will be made along the route. The itinerary included Newton, where a speech was made at noon time; Wellesley, where they were met by a drummer, and Natick, where they will remain over night.

Tomorrow the route will be through South Framingham, where they will address the employes of the Denison Manufacturing Company; Ashland, Southville and Westboro, where they will remain for the night.

Saturday they will journey through North Grafton to Worcester, arriving in that city at noon, in time to take part in the exercises at which Samuel J. Elder of Boston will preside.

NEW YORK LEADERS OF CAUSE BELIEVE THE STATE SAFE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Despite the defeat of the woman suffrage cause in New Jersey on Tuesday, suffragists of this State are confident that they will win in New York State when the issue comes up before the people at the polls on November 2.

Leila V. Scott, president of the Albany Equal Suffrage Club, spoke enthusiastically today of the outlook, saying:

"From every election district in this city the women came back enthusiastic over the chances of success following registration. In one instance it was reported that the betting among the politicians of that district was that the women would get 190 out of the 200 votes to be cast there. If the big political organizations stick to platform pledges and do not attempt to influence the voters against us, we have no fear of the result.

DR. SHAW IS VICTORIOUS.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, is representing the Vote in New Jersey, said:

"The failure to carry the election in New Jersey is not a defeat. It is simply a postponement. Instead of causing despair, the fact of success it will only inspire the true lovers of freedom to more perfect co-operation and greater zeal.

"We have not lost New Jersey because it has never been ours. We cannot lose; we can only win. This delay is a victory for suffrage, for the splendid campaign has proved woman's loyalty to a great purpose and her indomitable courage in the face of great odds and unscrupulous foes and methods.

"The sun will rise on a reorganized army, undaunted and hopeful, whose flag will never be furled until women are politically free.

"It is time for the men of New York to show themselves more worthy of their freedom and their gratitude to the women who have helped to make this great State by their vote on referendum, and let it be victory."

MRS. CATT ON NEW JERSEY.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, chairman of the National Suffrage Campaign Committee for Woman Suffrage, said:

"Insurmountable will the forces in New Jersey which have stood for fraud and corruption have been openly engaged in a campaign to defeat woman suffrage, and as these forces are well known in the art of stuffing ballot boxes, padding counts and are all acquainted with all the tricks which rob democracy of its rights, no one is surprised at the defeat.

"The defeat of the amendment to the Constitution of New Jersey which took place yesterday, it was no indictment of man suffrage in that State."

TO PUT ON FLESH AND INCREASE WEIGHT

GOOD ADVICE FOR THIN PEOPLE

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to gain a few pounds that way," declare many thin men and women. Such a result is usually not impossible despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of digestion are normal. Instead of getting into the blood much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the flesh making food elements must be so prepared in the digestive process that the blood will accept and distribute them throughout the body. There is a preparation called Sargol, which works on this basis and which is sold by nearly every druggist on a positive guarantee of weight increase or your money back. Hundreds have testified to weight increase from its use.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but is simply a combination of ingredients of acknowledged merit that, taken with meals, seems to better enable the digestive organs to separate the fattening elements of the food and to prepare them in a form which the blood can readily take up. Sargol comes in tablet form, is pleasant and easy to take and its action is perfectly natural and harmless. Sargol is sold by all druggists everywhere who are authorized to refund the full purchase price if weight increase is not obtained.

NOTE:—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while it has produced excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders care should be taken by those using it who do not want to increase weight.

GERMAN VOTERS TO INDORSE CANDIDATE

The convention of German-Americans, to be held in Worcester, Sunday, for the purpose of indorsing a gubernatorial candidate, has nothing to do with the war, according to Professor John Albrecht Walz of Harvard who issued the call for the meeting.

"The war has nothing to do with calling the convention," said Professor Walz today. "The suggestion to hold it came from the State branch of the German-American Alliance, and it is intended to arouse more interest in political life among those of German descent. Thus it is expected to make them better members of American society.

"Our attitude is one of strict neutrality. That is the duty of every American, and that is our duty. The convention is not an effort to line up the Germans with either political party, though the choice of a candidate lies between Mr. McCall and Governor Walsh.

OBJECT OF MOVEMENT.

"The convention will not be a close corporation. Citizens of German descent, no matter what their political faith or creed, will be welcome. We will not admit any English or Canadian reporters, but other newspapermen will be welcomed.

"The entrance of German-Americans into political life means no more than an effort to prevent abuse similar to what has been heaped upon us during the last twelve months. By entering politics we shall compel the respect to which we are entitled.

"We do not plan to indorse for office only pro-Germans. We shall indorse candidates who are neutral, in every sense of the word. Those of German sympathies have been much abused and maligned in the past year by some of the press, and those of English views. It is only through entrance into politics and through making a more detailed study of civil life that he will compel respect.

"It is obvious that the convention is not to indorse a pro-German; for both the Republican and Democratic candidates have time and again declared their neutrality."

TO INDORSE CANDIDATES.

The convention will meet in Frohmann Singing Society Hall in Worcester Sunday afternoon. Professor Walz, who teaches German language and literature at Harvard, and who is chairman of the State branch of the German-American Alliance, will preside.

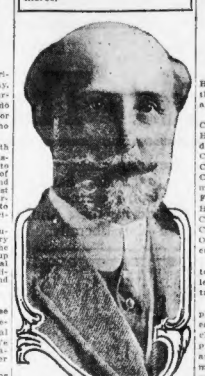
The conference is undertaken at the instance of the National German-American Alliance, it is understood, and it is planned that a series of similar gatherings will be held all over the country.

It was impossible to secure a copy of the circular calling the convention. President Walz said he had no copies. He estimated there are between 20,000 and 25,000 members of the German-American societies in Massachusetts who will be expected to ratify at the polls the indorsement to be given one or the other of the leading candidates.

R. E. A. Demuth, president of the Boston Turnverein, the largest German organization in this city, refused to comment upon the convention plans today, but referred inquiries to Professor Walz.

Professor Walz said he did not believe the decision of the German-Americans to act as a unit in political affairs would cause any criticism.

JOHN SHEPARD, JR., made president of the Governing Board of the Retail Trade Board of the Chamber of Commerce.



SHEPARD HEADS TRADE BOARD OF CHAMBER

The membership of the Governing Board of the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was announced today. It is as follows:

John Shepard, Jr., Shepard Norwell Co., president; Alexander McGregor, Houghton & Dutton Co., vice president; W. F. Waters, Jordan Marsh Co.; Samuel Johnson, E. P. Howe Co.; George H. Johnson, R. H. White Co.; Josiah S. Hathaway, White Automobile Co.; A. Lincoln Filene, William Filene's Sons Co.; Earle E. Conway, Hallet & Davis Piano Co.; Alexander Chandler, Chandler & Farquhar Co.; Charles A. Brown, Regal Shoe Co.; Otto J. Piehler, furrier; Walter Powers, Powers, Folsom & Powers.

The governing board will attempt to solve this year some of the problems that have confronted the retail trade for a number of years.

They include the matter of street parades in the retail section; a "shopearly" campaign for Christmas purchases; a campaign to apprise the public of the abuses of the delivery and returned goods systems and the matter of establishing a merchants' protective association to protect stores from dishonesty and to undertake prosecutions.

Driverless Car Scatters Folk in Chelsea Dash

A runaway automobile, with no one in it, which narrowly escaped knocking over scores of people, was reported to the Chelsea police today. The police say the automobile is owned by J. A. DePesa and was operated by Roger DePesa, No. 36 Oxford park, Revere, who had with him Ralph Carboni, No. 227 Revere street, Revere.

According to the police Roger DePesa and Carboni made a call at No. 67 Bellingham street, near the top of Bellingham Hill. The brakes became loose and the car shot down the hill, across Bellingham square and Broadway to Cherry street, where it hit a building and stopped. There was a scramble for safety when the driverless car shot by. The front of the car was smashed in.

WANT MILITIA OFFICERS FOR NEW ARMY

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The organized militia of the States and the naval reserve are expected to be depended on for the most part to officer the administration's preparedness plan is made effective.

To make up the shortage in officers it is planned to make appointments from civil life following drastic technical examinations, and preference will be given, it is said, to young men who already have mastered the technicalities as citizen soldiers, as well as to graduates of military academies.

Although the general plans for the strengthening of the navy and the reorganization of the army have been completed by Secretaries Daniels and Garrison, there yet remain many details to be worked out. Officials realize that their programs, inviting as they do unprecedented expenditures, are sure to meet a "show me" attitude in Congress. They are therefore getting together all the data possible in an effort to demonstrate the efficiency of the proposed plans and the justification of the expenditure of the millions necessary to rehabilitate the country's defenses.

Already two schools of thought have sprung up among naval experts as to the advisability of constructing battle cruisers along the lines recommended by Secretary Daniels. When this dimension reaches the ears of Congressmen they are bound to make a thorough investigation before authorizing the expenditure of millions of dollars to make effective a plan which has not the unanimous support of the navy itself.

Secretary Daniels has included in his building program six battle cruisers, to be built during the next five years, at $18,000,000 each. Several of the experts oppose this plan. Instead, they want the building program to make provision for a number of superscout cruisers, a type of craft which could be built for about $6,000,000, or two-thirds less than the battle cruiser. Mr. Daniels plans for battle cruisers of 32,000 tons displacement, which would mount eight 14-inch guns.

Seton's Second Wife Charges NonSupport

Ezra N. Seton was in the Superior Criminal Court on the charge of nonsupport of his second wife. He has been married three times and his third wife is still living. Mrs. Eva M. Seton, the second wife claims that in 1897 she married a man named McAndrew, but he left her and in 1904 she received word that he was dead.

She married Seton in 1907. Seton later told her that he had learned her first husband was living and that it was all over between them.

"New York has accepted the Ostrich Feather Boa as the correct thing. One sees them everywhere and they come in such a bewildering array of colors and combinations that they are worn with any costume from a tailored suit to an elaborate evening gown."—Fashion Note.

Ostrich Feather Boas

Ostrich Boas—hundreds and hundreds of them!

Not within the memory of the present generation at least has there been such a demand for ostrich neckwear as this Fall.

We are ready with Ostrich Boas of every conceivable color and combination of colors — the largest stock, the best assortment we have ever shown.

Fresh stock coming in every day direct from the hands of experienced expert feather workers. Today we are showing:

—Ostrich Boas in twenty-eight different colors and two-tone color combinations.

—Ostrich Boas, from 22 inches to 54 inches long.

—Ostrich Boas, ribbon or silk cord and tassel finished, at 1.95, 2.49, 2.95, 3.95, 4.95 6.50, 7.50, 8.50, 10.00, 12.50 and 15.00

The Shapes are round, full boas with deep, well curled and beautifully colored feathers.

The Color Combinations in two-tone effects are: Black with white tips, white with black, brown with white, taupe with white, Russian green with white, Copenhagen blue with white, navy blue with white, gray with white, African brown with sand, purple with white, purple with black, Russian green with sand, white with king blue, navy with sand, royal blue with sand, royal blue with green, pink with white and light blue with white.

It is a well-known fact that the supply of raw ostrich feathers from Africa is very plentiful this year because, on account of the war, there are few shipments being made into Europe.

We have arranged with experienced manufacturers to make ostrich boas for us exclusively and in large quantities.

To the best of our knowledge these values cannot be duplicated elsewhere at these prices.

Also one of the largest general stocks of Imported and Domestic Neckwear we have ever shown.

Special attention given to Mail Orders and Inquiries at all times.

A Famous Young Woman

WHEN the sun rose she was leading the uneventful life of cashier of a cafe-in-a-small-town in France.

When the sun set she was deeply involved in one of the most desperate and far reaching struggles ever waged between the secret service systems of Europe.

Such was the suddenness with which this mere slip of a girl was thrust by Fate from obscurity into the very center of those momentous events which preceded the beginning of the war.

You must read about her, in

"The Girl Philippa"

by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

It is a thrilling, gripping story of love and adventure that will hold you enthralled from first word to last.

Mr. Chambers is supreme among modern writers in his ability to create charming women. In Philippa he has fairly surpassed himself. She is altogether fascinating, bewitching, adorable.

The story of the great love which comes into her life despite her dangerous environment will rank "The Girl Philippa" among the imperishable romances of English literature.

Women! It's Easy! Dry Clean With Gasoline—Save $5

Nothing shrinks, fades or wrinkles and a wash boiler will do nicely.

Women here who have tried dry cleaning find it very easy and inexpensive to clean and freshen all the ribbons, silks, satins, laces, yokes, furs, silk shirtwaists, kid gloves and shoes, neckties, children's clothes, suits, caps, Swiss, lawn organdie and chiffon dresses, woolen garments, fancy vests, draperies, rugs, in fact, any and everything that would be ruined with soap and water.

Get two ounces of solvite at any drug store and put it in two gallons of gasoline, where it instantly dissolves, then put in the goods to be cleaned, rub a little and out they come looking as bright and fresh as new. You will find nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles, requiring no pressing.

You can do five dollars' worth of home dry cleaning in an hour at little cost. It is so easy you can't make a mistake. Any grocery or garage will supply the gasoline and you can obtain two ounces of solvite at the drug store, which is simply a gasoline soap, then a wash boiler or large dishpan completes your dry-cleaning outfit.—Advertisement.

WHERE DOES THE MONEY GO?

One of the Most Vital Problems in Household Life—A Question That All Husbands and Wives Ask Themselves and Each Other Nearly Every Day.

WHERE Does the Money Go? How many times have you asked yourself that very question? And how many times were you able to answer it to your complete satisfaction? As an aid to its readers, no matter what their walk in life, the AMERICAN has invited discussion on this vital problem by noted men and women. Dorothy Dix penned the opening article. Today Gertrude Atherton takes up the man's side of the question. Following is the order named will come articles by RUPERT HUGHES, MRS. JAMES SPEYER, MRS. JULIAN HEATH and MRS. JAMES LEE LAIDLAW.

By Gertrude Atherton

Admittedly in the ranks of American novelists, Mrs. Atherton's cosmopolitan experience makes her remarks particularly valuable and instructive.

ABOUT fifty per cent goes for trash; that much may be said in the beginning. It is very true that the American household is conducted more wastefully than any type of European establishment; more so even than the aristocratic menage where one sees half a dozen liveried footmen lounging in the hall in stark idleness. In the latter case, the European balances the scale by economies in matters invisible to the onlooker, while in American waste goes on from top to bottom.

There are a dozen reasons for this national characteristic, beginning with the fact that America has the wealth to waste. But they all trace back to the man. Of course the American husband declares privately if not publicly that his wife is the one to blame. Actually it is his own vanity that is fed by the expenditures which eat up his surplus and drive him frequently to the bankruptcy court. One seldom hears of bankruptcy in Europe, whereas it is an everyday matter here.

FOOLISH PROMISES

The American husband wants his wife to think that he can do anything. He will not admit that any expenditure is beyond his income, at least his potential income. From the very beginning he starts on a false basis, promising riches, telling the woman he is to marry how he means to surround her with luxury—promises that would sound as foolish as they really are if uttered by a poor man to a poor girl in Europe. He is the experienced one, he should know the value of money much better than any young girl. But he wants to start showily.

A man thinks it is his wife who wastes his money, because he can actually see the things on which she spent it. She has to incur the household bills, to make all the purely necessary outlay, so when he thinks of her spending he lumps it all together, the coal and milk bills along with her new hat, and counts them all against her. He can see the hat and focus his grievance on it; he can throw one hat, one gown at her head a dozen times. But all the time his own extravagances, for "treating" his acquaintances, buying better cigars, paying club dues and for casual lunches, is growing to a surprising total, which he never notices, because he pays it as he goes, and there is nothing afterward to remind him of it.

THEIR SNOBBISH TRAITS

And then if his wife does not dress as well as the next, if his children are not "in" everything, however expensive, he is secretly annoyed, en are more snobbish than women.

And most of all, he wants to be nobility and expensively amused, this is also partly snobbery; people are afraid to entertain more simply than their neighbors. But mainly I think American men like restaurant entertainments simply because they are noisy. The crash and clatter of music and voices keep a man from thinking, and the American man does not want to think after business hours. He is afraid his wife may want him to talk to her intelligently. There, in fact, is one reason why American men delay giving women the vote; they are fearful that the women may use it as a club to make them think, to make them match wits and meet their women as thinking human beings. And to prevent that catastrophe the American man indulges his wife in her real extravagance, buys her off with trifles.

That is where the money goes—on amusement and outentation. And it nine cases out of ten it is the husband's fault. He strikes the keynote of married life at the very beginning.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

Discussion No. 2 will be by HERBERT HUGHES, the celebrated writer, whose keen studies of human nature make his opinions of great value to those interested in the subject of this serie.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

"I am a Professional GOAT"

The crooked bank directors, trembling over their inevitable exposure, gladly shift their burdens to Wallingford, who professes a desire to be blamed in such matters. Why Wallingford was willing to risk the fury of the mob, is the wildly exciting theme of this week's part of

THE NEW ADVENTURES OF J. RUFUS WALLINGFORD

"I'll bear the blame. If anybody's pinched, it'll be me. If anybody's to travel, it'll be me!" said Wallingford.

But that shrewd individual is doing nothing for nothing, nor is he putting his neck into the noose.

In fact, you will learn how being a professional goat netted him several hundred thousands and the undying gratitude of a beautiful lady.

The pictures of Wallingford are sweeping the country by storm. Each week's installment is absolutely distinct—so you can begin now.

Who is responsible for Wallingford?

George Randolph Chester, who created him. Chas. W. Goddard, who was dramatic author of "Elaine," "The Goddess" and "Pauline." Burr McIntosh who plays J. Rufus; Max Figman, who plays Blackie. NOW URGE PRESIDENT TO VISIT CANAL ZONE ON HONEYMOON

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—President Wilson is being urged to combine business with enjoyment and to visit Panama on his wedding trip. He has not been on the canal strip since his election, and there are many matters there that might be easier solved through personal acquaintance. Canal officials are urging that such a trip easily might be undertaken and would not consume much time if made by land to Key West and then by vessel to the isthmus.

The chief obstacle is said to be the fact that sea voyages do not appeal either to the President or to Mrs. Galt. However, the Panama trip, like the suggested Californian visit, will remain possibilities until the wedding details all are arranged.

Many men and women who were in the audience at a local theatre last night, where the President gave a theatre party in honor of his fiancee, were wondering what it was that Mrs. Galt whispered in the President's ear that caused much apparent pleasure. It was while a vaudeville performer was singing a sentimental song.

The beautiful woman who soon is to become mistress of the White House leaned over and whispered something to the chief executive. Both then smiled broadly. The couple presented a splendid picture of devotion. They used the same opera glasses and seemed to enjoy being the centre of attraction.

WORE WONDERFUL GOWN.

Mrs. Galt wore a wonderful creation of black silk and old Irish lace. The other guests were Mrs. Bolling, Mrs. Galt's mother, and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones. The party stayed until the final curtain and were warmly applauded as they left the theatre.

Mrs. Galt spent a part of today shopping in the Washington department stores, where she is a favorite with the attendants. She is maintaining the mystery of the wedding gown and not even her most intimate friends know what it is to be like. It was said at the executive offices today that the announcement of the wedding date would not be withheld much longer and that after that is settled the facts regarding the trousseau would be permitted to become public.

The latest suggestion regarding the date is shortly before Thanksgiving and like all others that have preceded it is considered as good as anything in the absence of the official announcement.

PIT END TO ROMANCE.

A pretty little story showing the keen interest taken by the President in the family of his fiancee came to light today. Mrs. Galt had a beautiful niece, Miss Elizabeth Bolling, daughter of Mrs. Galt's favorite brother, John Randolph Bolling, in charge of the Commercial Bank at Panama.

Miss Bolling is very young, and an attachment not specially favored by relatives grew up between her and a suitor. Appeal was made to sister Edith to come down to Panama and induce her romantic young niece to abandon her ideas on the subject of the interesting young man.

Word was cabled back to Panama that the President had invited Miss Elizabeth Bolling to come to Washington and visit at the Summer White House. Miss Bolling accepted the invitation and the trip to the United States had the desired effect of calling off the romance begun in the tropics.

It is interesting to know that Miss Bolling will be one of the White House belles in the coming season.

It is understood that she resembles Mrs. Galt so closely that despite the disparity of their ages they are "as alike as two black-eyed peas," to use a favorite "Wytheville" expression.

One of the most regal gowns of Mrs. Galt's trousseau has been delivered at her home and is exactly suited for an afternoon function in the East room or Blue room of the White House or for a wedding ceremony. It is of soft, heavy satin in deep cream. The skirt is made plain with a four-inch band of sable about the bottom. The train is pleated and is separate from the skirt. Both train and skirt are embroidered in a conventional design in golden thread. The waist has long cream-colored gauntlet sleeves, and the neck bodice is of satin, embroidered in gold braid.

If the designs of the gowns of the next White House mistress are any sign, trained gowns will play an important part in the fashion world this year. Except for a few afternoon gowns designed for luncheon and informal teas, all Mrs. Galt's gowns have trains.

One Washington modiste, who is furnishing some of Mrs. Galt's trousseau said today:

"All you see about this 'green-bolling green' is not true. Mrs. Galt told me herself that she has only two green costumes and that she is not going to buy any more of that color.

INSISTS ON PLAIN LINES.

"It is a mistake to say that Mrs. Galt's clothes are fancy for they are not. They have to be modified on artistic plain lines or she will not have them.

"The mystery of the wedding gown is just as great today as it was a week ago. Three costumes, which will be entirely suitable for this function, have been delivered within the last two or three days."

GIRL WHO HANDED WILSON PETITION

Little Altha McCuen, Eleven Years, Won the Honor of Placing California's Invitation to President Wilson and His Bride to Visit the State's Great Expositions in an Essay Contest Among 300,000 School Children of Her State.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—President Wilson today has a petition from 300,000 Californians to attend the Panama-Pacific and the San Diego Expositions on his honeymoon.

The presentation was made by a delegation of women and girls from San Francisco. They were headed by Mrs. Gallard Stoney, secretary of the Woman's Board of the exposition.

The President is understood to have told the delegation that he was seriously considering a visit to both California expositions before they close in December. This was taken as an indication that Mrs. Norman Galt will become the President's bride before Thanksgiving Day, as she was specifically included in the invitation.

The petition was suggested by the San Francisco Call and Post, an evening newspaper, less than three weeks ago. As a result of its energetic work the idea was adopted by newspapers and public officials in Los Angeles, San Diego, Santa Barbara, San Jose and Sacramento.

Governor Johnson, United States Senators Works and Phelan, Mayors of the principal cities, Chambers of Commerce and many other organizations were active in aiding the project.

Boards of Education in San Francisco, Los Angeles and other cities undertook the circulation of petitions among the school children.

The party delegated to bear the petition included Miss Esther Bull, representing the Girls' High School of San Francisco; Miss Dorothy Barr, representing the private schools, and Miss Altha McCuen, eleven, representing the grammar schools.

The delegates mostly were chosen by popular selection. Little Miss McCuen won the right to hand the President the petition by writing the best letter of invitation to him in a grammar school competition.

To her spoken plea that he come to California and bring his bride with him, the President is reported to have replied:

"There never has been a time when I had to be urged to go to California. I am very anxious to see the beautiful exposition. It has been merely a matter of finding time to go."

Miss Starr presented the President with a bar of gold which came from her father's mine. She suggested that it be used for the making of the ring with which the President will wed Mrs. Galt.

"That's a very happy thought," he said, accepting the gift.

TRAIN BANDITS DRIVEN OFF IN GUN BATTLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Armed posses in automobiles are guarding every road around Glen Rock, N. J., to capture the six bandits who last night held up an Erie freight train and fled in an automobile when the train crew drove them off with a fusillade of bullets.

Thirty shots were fired after the five robbers rifled the cars, taking a bale of silk. The bandits are thought to be the same ones who held up two trains on the West Shore near Haverstraw Monday.

One of the robbers is believed to have hidden between cars on the Erie freight No. 77. Two box cars in the train were filled with baled silk. On account of the hold up Monday night, near Haverstraw, N. Y., four detectives were on the train.

Robbed in Brockton.

BROCKTON, Oct. 21.—Edward J. King of No. 90 Grove street, an insurance collector, was robbed of $25 by three men while on his way home.

Man, 'Identified' by Mouth, Held as Thief

FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 21.—The expression of a man's mouth was the cause of his being held for the Grand Jury in the District Court here. Miss Dalia Brady verified her recognition of Joseph Cormier in that way when she testified that he was the man who broke into her father's house.

Corse Payton Shut Out by Wife's Will

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The will of Mrs. Ella Reed Payton, filed for probate, excluded her husband, Corse Payton, theatrical proprietor, from any participation in her estate. Mrs. Payton died in Springfield, Mass. The bequeaties are Mrs. Carrie L. Reed, her mother, and Gustav R. Payton, a son.

State Prisoner of 36 Years Is Dead

Charles E. Bancroft seventy-one, is dead at the Charlestown State Prison, in which he had spent thirty-six years as a prisoner. His last sentence was for a term of twenty years. Bancroft who claimed to be a Civil War scout, was well educated. He will be buried in the prisoner's lot, Concord, tomorrow.

COULD NOT WALK WITHOUT A CANE

Condition of Peter Sheridan of No. 3 Perkin Place, Prior to Taking Plant Juice.

In an interview yesterday, the Plant Juice Man, who has his headquarters at the Liggett Drug Company's store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is introducing the great herbal system tonic, Plant Juice, said:

If people would only realize that 90 per cent. of all the ills that human flesh is heir to are directly traceable to the stomach, and when the digestive organs are not properly performing the work that nature has assigned to them, the nutrition, which is absolutely essential to the recovery of other diseased parts, will be lacking, and there will be no permanent relief. It usually begins from weakness, from lack of vital activity, in the secretory glands of the stomach, from a want of sufficient gastric juice; hence a remedy that will arouse these parts, stimulate them to action and infuse them with vitality, will remove the cause, and the dreadful symptoms which denote stomach, kidney and live trouble will vanish. Plant Juice stimulates the secretory glands, attacks and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects diseased conditions of the liver and kidneys and restores them to normal condition.

This contention is verified daily by the numbers of signed statements from local people. Mr. Peter Sheridan, who resides at No. 3 Perkin Place, Somerville, an employe of a large iron works in Boston, says:

"For about 15 years I have suffered with catarrh of the stomach and head. I could not retain any food in my stomach and my throat was so choked up with phlegm that I could not swallow. I had rheumatism so badly in my limbs that I could not walk without a cane; also in my shoulders and back; bad circulation and my hands and feet were always cold. I was in such a weak condition that I was laid up all winter and unable to go to work. I had tried all kinds of treatments and remedies without benefit, until I heard of Plant Juice, and began to take it. I am glad to state that Plant Juice has cured me, for I am no longer troubled with catarrh of the stomach or head, rheumatism is gone, and I am, any kind of food and feel fine."—Advertisement.

BEST FOR LIVER, BOWELS, STOMACH HEADACHE, COLDS

They liven the liver and bowels and straighten you right up.

Don't be bilious, constipated, sick, with breath bad and stomach sour.

Tonight sure! Take Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Wake up with your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right and feeling fine. Get rid of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, furred tongue, sour stomach, bad colds. Clear your skin, brighten your eyes, quicken your step and feel like doing a full day's work. Cascarets are better than salts, pills or calomel because they don't shock the liver or gripe the bowels or cause inconvenience all the next day.

Mothers should give cross, sick, bilious, feverish children a whole Cascaret any time, as they cannot injure the thirty feet of tender bowels.—Advertisement.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is musSy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.—Advertisement.

HEADCHE FROM A COLD? LISTEN!

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours.

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute. For sale by Riker-Jaynes and all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

Don't Neglect Backache

Pains in the back are danger signals that should always be heeded. At the first twinge get from any drug store a five-ounce package of rheumasalts and take two teaspoonfuls before breakfast each morning. This will cause the liver to become active and cleanse the kidneys from impurities which cause backache. In a few days you will feel far more comfortable.—Advertisement.

'REEL' STARS TO BE SEEN IN REAL LIFE

The movie fans of Boston have often been heard to express their desires to see their favorite actor or actress in real life. This opportunity, which is not to be had every day, will come on Wednesday evening, December 1, when the leading film favorites of the country will attend the third annual movie ball in the Boston Arena.

This year's affair promises to eclipse that of last year, when almost ten thousand movie fans greeted the stars in the Arena, while the management was compelled to turn away five thousand others.

The grand march last year was led by Governor David I. Walsh and Mary Pickford. The executive committee was at a loss whom to pick as the Governor's partner in the double accostein which will lead this year's grand march.

The Governor's partner and the remaining five couples, who will compose the double acstette, are to be chosen by the readers of the AMERICAN. A voting contest is now running and the vote to be used will be found on page two of the daily and Sunday AMERICAN. The six actresses and five actors, receiving the largest number of votes, will compose the double acstette with the Governor.

The AMERICAN offers 121 awards to the voters in the contest. The eleven voters submitting the largest number of votes for the stars who will compose the double acstette will have a special reserved box section at the ball, meet all the film favorites face to face, be present as honored guests at the film stars' banquet immediately after the ball and go to and from the ball in touring automobiles.

A FINE TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

EASY TO MAKE AND COSTS LITTLE

Catarrh is such an insidious disease and has become so prevalent during the past few years that its treatment should be understood by all.

Science has fully proved that Catarrh is a constitutional disease and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Sprays, inhalers, salves and nose douches seldom if ever give lasting benefit and often drive the disease further down the air passages and into the lungs.

If you have Catarrh or Catarrhal deafness or head noises, go to your druggist and get one ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved, take one tablespoonful 4 times a day.

This will effect bring quick relief from the distressing head noises, clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and mucus stop dropping into the throat.

This treatment has a pleasant taste, and makes it especially effective in cases where the blood has become thin and weak. It is easy to make, tastes pleasant and costs little. Every person who wishes to be free from Catarrh misery should give this treatment a trial.—Advertisement.

MISS MARION CHALMERS, Wheaton College girl, engaged to Walter Harrison Fowle, a Technology student.

Announcement is made today of the engagement of Miss Marion Chalmers, vice-president of the senior class at the Wheaton College, to Walter Harrison Fowle, Tech 1916.

Miss Chalmers is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Chalmers of No. 49 Pleasant street, Woburn. Mr. Fowle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Fowle, of No. 8 Cedar street, Woburn.

The engagement is the culmination of a romance started when both were members of the Woburn High School. To a favorite few the announcement became known on Miss Chalmers' birthday, September 26, and through the connivance of her roommate at Wheaton, Miss Ruth Clifford of Lenox, whose birthday also fell on the same day.

A spread was given to the class officer at which fourteen girls were present. They all kept the engagement a secret until today, when it became generally known.

Miss Chalmers graduated from Wheaton Seminary last year and was the Prophet of her class and president of the Psyche Club. This year she was named vice-president of the senior class of the college. She is socially active both in Woburn and in Wheaton.

WILSON POINTS THANKSGIVING LESSONS

By the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—President Wilson today issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation, dwelling strongly on the fact that this country has escaped being drawn into the world war that is raging in Europe. His proclamation, setting Thursday, Nov. 25, as Thanksgiving Day, follows:

It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful Autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year that is now drawing to a close since we last observed our day of national thanksgiving, has been, while a year of discipline, because of the mighty forces of war and of change which have disturbed the world, also a year of special blessing for us.

ASSERT RIGHTS OF MANKIND.

Another year of peace has been vouchsafed us; another year in which not only to take thought of our duty to ourselves and to mankind, but also to adjust ourselves to the many responsibilities thrust upon us by a war which has involved almost the whole of Europe.

We have been able to assert our rights of mankind without breach of friendship with the great nations, with whom we have had to deal, and while we have asserted right, we have been able also to perform duties and exercised privileges of succor and helpfulness, which should serve to demonstrate our desire to make the offices of friendship the means of truly disinterested and unselfish service.

Our ability to serve all who could avail themselves of our services in the midst of crisis has been increased by a gracious Providence by more and more abundant crops; our ample financial resources have enabled us to steady the markets of the world and facilitate necessary movements of commerce, which the war might otherwise rendered impossible and our people have come more and more to a sober realization of the part they have been called upon to play in a time when all the world is shaken by unparalleled distress and disasters.

QUICKENED CONSCIOUSNESS.

The extraordinary circumstances of such a time have done much to quicken our national consciousness and deepen and confirm our confidence in the principles of peace and freedom, by which we have always sought to be guided.

Out of darkness and perplexity have come firmer counsels of policy and clearer perceptions of the essential welfare of the nation. We have prospered while other people were at war, but our prosperity has been vouchsafed us, we believe, only that we might the better perform the functions which we rendered it impossible for them to perform.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-fifth of November, next, as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this 20th day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and fifteen, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and fortieth.

Two Hurt as Auto Truck Hits Coal Team

Two men were injured on Everett avenue, Chelsea, when an auto coal truck, owned by the Massachusetts Wharf Coal Company, and a coal wagon owned by the Metropolitan Coal Company, collided. Joseph Rock, fifty-nine, of No. 28 Broadway, Chelsea, driver of the coal wagon, and John Brush, twenty-two, of No. 82 Division street, Chelsea, who was riding beside him, were thrown to the ground. Rock's right arm was lacerated and he received scalp wounds, while Brush's right leg was bruised. They were treated at the Frost Hospital. The auto truck was operated by E. Sanderson.

Britain Raises Big Red Cross Fund

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Throughout the British Isles today efforts will be made to raise a great fund for the work of the British Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John and Jerusalem. King George has subscribed $25,000. Many of the theatres are to give the total receipts of their performances, and the owners of big game preserves have sent game into the city to be sold to the highest bidders.

NOT A PARTICLE OF DANDRUFF OR A FALLING HAIR

Save your hair! Double its beauty in just a few moments.

25-cent "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing, your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance, incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. For sale by Hiker-Jaynes and all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

A New Departure—Opening of a

Ladies' Department

At EDWARDS CREDIT CO.

WE are pleased to announce the opening of our new Ladies' Department, with a carefully selected stock of Ladies' Suits, Coats, Waists, etc., and cordially invite you to pay us a visit and critically examine the entirely new stock and make your selection therefrom upon any terms of credit most convenient to you.

You will remember that when we opened the largest and most elegant credit apartments in the city a year ago, it was our policy not to carry any ladies' goods in stock, of any kind whatsoever, but to give our lady patrons the widest possible range of selection from the combined stocks of the leading department stores and the big cash specialty suit and cloak shops, by means of our popular shopping check system which has met with the greatest favor and approval of thousands of lady buyers. Notwithstanding this constantly growing favor there are many reasons why we have adopted this new policy—the main reason being that many of our leading patrons have suggested it, preferring, rather than shop around, as our goods and prices are the same as in the cash stores, to select and make their purchases while in our store, with the privilege of having the goods charged and paying us at the rate of $1.00 a week on their accounts.

It is not what we want to sell, but giving our patrons just exactly what they want to buy, anywhere they want to buy it, either in our store or any other store, and at the lowest cash prices on credit, that has made the Edwards Company so highly successful.

Our lady patrons have their choice; they may select from our own brand new stock, at regular cash store prices, or they may select wherever they please in the big cash stores and pay for same with our authorized Shopping Check, which we furnish as usual at only one dollar a week.

Courteous and experienced salespeomen are here to offer assistance or advice in making selections.

G-I-P-S-Y FILE NO. 113

EMILE GABORIAU'S classic Parisian mystery—A story of Daring Plots, Thrilling Action and Marvelous Detective Work. In five instalments.

SYNOPSIS OF OPENING INSTALMENT.

Prosper Bertomy, head cashier in the bank of M. Andre Fauvel at No. 87 Rue de Provence in Paris, is accused on February 28, 186—, of having robbed his employer's safe of 350,000 francs, the night before.

Prosper denies the robbery but admits that, against the bank rule, he had drawn the money the night before from the Bank of France to meet a payment of 500,000 francs for which Count Louis de Clameran was to call that morning.

Prosper had one key to the safe, M. Fauvel the other. But the safe had, besides its key-lock, five movable buttons, each bearing the alphabet. The password of five letters, was known only to the cashier and the banker. The robber evidently knew the password and had a key, as the safe had not been broken.

Fanferlot, a detective nicknamed "The squirrel," found a scratch on the safe door, leading from the key hole. Ambitious for himself, Fanferlot noted this but made light of it.

Prosper insists that M. Fauvel had access to the safe, as well as he. Before being taken to jail Prosper dispatches a note to "Gipsy" by a clerk friend. Fanferlot intercepts the note and delivers it to Mme. Nina Gipsy at No. 39 Rue Chaptal, a luxurious apartment of Prosper and Mme. Gipsy.

Hints have been given of former love between Prosper and Madeline, niece of the banker. But this was strongly broken off. Prosper seeking solace with Nina.

Prosper's note bade Nina Gipsy establish herself secretly in another part of Paris. Nina tells Fanferlot, whom she takes for Prosper's friend, that Prosper does not really love her, but she is wild to help him. Fanferlot persuades her to go to a hotel he names, the Grand Archangel.

Prosper is noticed with surprise at the Prefecture of Police by M. Lecoq, a celebrated detective. M Patrigent, the magistrate, receives Prosper's denial and holds him for further examination. Then the magistrate questions M. Fauvel.

M. Fauvel says he does not know why Madeline and Prosper broke off unless it was due to Prosper's recent dissipation, induced possibly by Raoul de Lagors, a relative of the banker's wife. The banker says the password to the combination of the safe had been changed by Prosper only the night before. The new password was "Gipsy."

CHAPTER V.
A Great Detective.

AFTER M. Patrigent, the magistrate, noted the password "Gipsy," M. Fauvel said that he did not know that 350,000 francs had been put in the safe the night before the robbery. It seemed significant to the magistrate that Prosper had disobeyed a standing order by drawing the money from the Bank of France and leaving it in the Fauvel safe over night.

Lucien Fauvel, the banker's son, testified that he always thought Prosper and Madeline would some time make up and wed.

Fanferlot, "the squirrel" told the magistrate about Madame Gipsy's life but said nothing of Prosper's meeting with Madeline. He was looking toward his own glorification.

Prosper confronted by Madeline and Nina Gipsy—"Prosper cried: 'O, Madeline! God only knows how I love you.' Suddenly Prosper noticed Madeline's maid standing nearby. With surprise he glanced again at the other girl. Madeline's neatly dressed maid was none other than Nina Gipsy."

Posed especially for the Boston AMERICAN by Miss Jane Seymour (Madeline), Miss Alice John (Nina) and Earle Boothe (Prosper) of "Twin Beds," now running at the Park Square Theatre.

"Do not lose sight of the woman, Gipsy," said the magistrate to Fanferlot, "she must know where the money is and can put us on the right scent."

Fanferlot smiled cunningly. "She is in good hands, sir," he replied.

The next morning the magistrate examined Nina Gipsy and other witnesses. Two summoned did not appear. One was the messenger who brought the 350,000 from the Bank of France to Prosper. He was ill. The other was Raoul de Lagors. At the end of five days the magistrate thought he held proof against Prosper.

The following Monday morning Prosper's aged father came to his son's cell and reproached Prosper bitterly. Before leaving, however, he was partly convinced by Prosper's firm denial of the robbery.

Prosper was then called for a second time before M. Patrigent, the magistrate.

In the police-agents' room Prosper saw again the gold-spectacled man who had scared him the humiliation of further search the day of his arrest. The man said: "Courage, M. Bertomy. If you are innocent, there are those who will help you."

"Who is that gentleman?" Prosper asked an officer.

"Is it possible you don't know him. He is M. Lecoq of the detective force."

"Lecoq?"

"You might say Monsieur Lecoq," said the offended officer. "He is a man who knows everything he wants to without it being told to him it seems he is a friend of yours."

"I never saw him until my first day here."

A Man of Many Parts and Changes.

"You can't swear to that. No one can boast of knowing the real face of M. Lecoq. Sometimes he is dark, sometimes fair, sometimes young, sometimes an octogenarian. Why, at times he even deceives me. I begin to talk to a stranger—bah! it turns out to be M. Lecoq. A wonderful man."

Before the magistrate, Prosper firmly asserted his innocence.

"Then you persist in accusing M. Fauvel?"

"Him or someone else."

Prosper admitted having borrowed money from Raoul de Lagors, relative of Mme. Fauvel. As de Lagors had left Paris, the magistrate had to accept Prosper's word, for the time being.

"Why did you have the 350,000 francs in the safe over night?"

"Because," replied Prosper, "M. de Clameran had informed me that it would be convenient, necessary even, for him to have his money early in the morning. He will testify to that if you summon him."

"Is M. de Clameran a friend of yours?"

"By no means. I dislike him, but he is an intimate friend of M. de Lagors."

Suddenly the magistrate held up Prosper's note to Nina Gipsy, saying: "Why this note?"

The blow struck. Prosper stammered: "I wished——"

"To hide her."

"Yes."

Referring to records, the magistrate said, to Prosper's amazement: "Her name is not Gipsy. She is Palmyre Chocarelle, born in Paris in 1840. In 1858 she went to Lisbon and returned in 1861 to Paris with the name of Nina Gipsy. Six months later she made the acquaintance of a commercial traveler named Caldas, who became infatuated with her beauty and furnished her some rooms. She assumed his name for some time, then she deserted him to devote herself to you. Did you ever hear of this Caldas?"

"Never, sir."

"The foolish man so deeply loved this creature that her desertion drove him almost insane. He swore he would kill his rival if he ever found him. It was later said he committed suicide. He certainly disappeared."

The name "Caldas" remained in Prosper's mind. The questions changed to his break with Madeline.

Prosper denied that Nina was the cause of it. Pressed for explanation, he said:

"I had reasons which I cannot reveal."

Prosper declared that, after he tied up the bank notes in bundles and locked them in the safe, he left the office before the messenger who had brought the money.

When Prosper was led back to his cell, the magistrate went by cab to a hospital where the sick messenger was and found that this was true.

CHAPTER VI.
"The Squirrel" Outwitted.

THE Hotel Grand Archangel, where Fanferlot had secretly sent Nina Gipsy, was kept by Madame Alexandre, Fanferlot's wife.

"The Squirrel" explored his lack of real clews on the case. He had taken good care that Nina Gipsy did not see him at the hotel. When the latter was summoned by the police she thought it due to official skill, as she had registered under her real name of Palmyre Chocarelle. She never suspected Fanferlot and had told much of her history to Mme. Alexandre.

Mme. Alexandre suggested to her husband, in his perplexity, that he consult M. Lecoq.

"Do you want me to lose my place?" he said. "M. Lecoq does not suspect that I have anything to do with the case except obey his orders."

Nina had given Jean, a hotel porter, a letter to post. Mme. Alexandre had intercepted it. She gave it to Fanferlot, who dextrously opened the envelope. It was addressed to "M. L. de Clameran, Forge-Master, Hotel de Louvre—to be handed to M. Raoul de Lagors."

The letter read:

Monsieur Raoul-Prosper is to prison, accused of the robbery which he now committed. I wrote you three days ago and have had no reply. If you don't answer this letter I shall consider myself released from a certain promise and will tell Prosper of a certain talk I overheard between you and M. de Clameran. I shall expect to meet you at the Grand Archangel the day after tomorrow, between 12 and 6.

NINA GIPSY.

They heard Nina coming. Fanferlot hid in a closet. Nina confided to Mme. Alexandre that she had been called out by a message. She showed a note she had received. Mme. Alexandre read it aloud, as Fanferlot in the closet could hear. It was thus:

A friend of Prosper's, who can neither reassure you nor present himself at your hotel, is desirous to speak to you. Be at the omnibus office opposite the tower of Jacques tonight at 9 o'clock. There will be there and you will be able to see him.

Nina went out. Fanferlot, disguising himself in a thick beard, wig and linen blouse, following hastily and found Nina waiting in the omnibus office. "The Squirrel" watched covertly from a corner.

At nine o'clock, a man of medium size, rather stout, with crimson face and fiery red whiskers came in, sat beside Nina and began talking to her.

He seemed to ask something which Nina first refused, then seemed to promise. Finally the red-whiskered man gave her his arm. The went out and took a cab. The cab was driven off swiftly along the Boulevard Sebastopol.

Fanferlot pursued the cab, caught up with it and, in the Rue Faubourg St. Martin, jumped up on the rear springs and held on. The cab stopped in front of a wine-shop. The driver went in. Fanferlot jumped down from the springs and waited in a doorway for Nina and the red-whiskered man to alight. After five minutes Fanferlot ventured to approach and peep in the cab.

"Oh, cruel deception! It was empty.

CHAPTER VII.
"The Squirrel's" Master.

FANFERLOT returned to the Hotel Archangel downcast. Nina came in at one in the morning. She asked for two bundles, which had come for her and said abruptly that she was leaving in the morning.

Fanferlot, who overheard, was astounded, especially as the girl was evidently disregarding her note to Raoul de Lagore—which Fanferlot had rented after reading—asking him to meet her at the hotel the next day.

On his wife's advice, Fanferlot consented to consult M. Lecoq, much as he dreaded that compelling mind. He was at M. Lecoq's house at six the next morning.

M. Lecoq appeared as the same man, with the gold spectacles, who had spoken so kindly to Prosper at the Prefecture. But he was not kind to Fanferlot.

He denounced "The Squirrel" for working in the dark, on his own account, for self-glory. He called him stupid, saying:

"You probably held in your hands the means of knowing which key had been used to open the safe when the money was stolen. Remember the scratch on the safe? Evidently made with a key. You should have asked for the cashier's and the cashier's keys. One of them probably would have had particles of green paint sticking to it. The only clue, and you, like a fool, neglect it."

Fanferlot, humbled, told all he knew, except how he was fooled by Nina and the red-whiskered man. M. Lecoq interrupted:

"Tell me, how far did you follow the cab?"

Fanferlot exclaimed: "Now I know! You were the red-whiskered man."

M. Lecoq smiled and said: "You, yourself, were poorly disguised. A huge beard and a blouse are not enough. The eye is the thing to be changed—the eye. That is the secret."

M. Lecoq added that Nina was following his advice. Then, reverting to the scratch on the safe door, he brought out a box painted green like

BE CLEAN INTERNALLY

Over 300,000 People Are Now Being So.

For many years physicians have agreed that 95 per cent. of human ills was caused by accumulated waste in the Lower Intestine, that in our present way of living Nature could not remove all this waste without assistance, no matter how regular we might be; and that the poisons from this waste circulating through the blood pulled us away down below par and were responsible for many diseases of a serious nature.

During this time the "J. B. L. Cascade" (or Internal Bathing Tube), because of their recommendation and those of its users, has steadily grown in favor.

Recently, however, the startling news which has been over the country that great surgeons and specialists have been speaking on the Lower Intestine in such serious diseases as Tuberculosis, and at last the public press has taken it up. Dr. Lane, of London, England, in a recent address on this subject, also saying that these operations are invariably the development of Cancer and Tuberculosis (as per Lane's statement article in the New York Times), has caused Americans to become thoroughly awake to the importance of keeping this Lower Intestine free from all poisonous waste matter, and over 300,000 are now using Internal Baths.

If you try the "J. B. L. Cascade" you will find yourself always bright, confident and capable—the poisonous waste makes us bilious, dull and nervous. Internal Baths are Nature's own cure for "Auto-Intoxication" and "Self-Poisoning" applied. Drugs force Nature—the "J. B. L. Cascade" only assists her.

Call and see it at the Silver-Jaynes Drug Store, 11 Temple street, or ask them for "Why Man of To-Day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient," booklet of great interest, which is given free on request.—Advertisement.

Acute Articular Rheumatism

Relieved By Anti-Kamnia Tablets

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, though it is generally believed to be due to the excess of uric acid in the blood. It is also said that this acid is found in the urine that 2 grains has been found sufficient in 40 cases. In fact the literature of rheumatism shows that there are but few drugs which have not been given a trial, in the hands of one observer we find that a certain drug has been used with the utmost satisfaction, others have found the same remedy to be a great disappointment. All physicians however agree that every method of treatment is aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and quiet the nervous system and Dr. W. S. Schultze expresses the opinion of thousands of practitioners when he says that Anti-Kamnia Tablets should be given preference over all other remedies for the relief of the pain in all forms of rheumatism. These tablets can be purchased in any quantity. They are also unsurpassed in headache, neuralgia and all pain. Ask for Anti-Kamnia Tablets.

R. H. WHITE CO.

The Unusual Things to Remember in This Sale

1st. That the R. H. White Co. don't sell pianos regularly.

2nd. That the maker to keep his factory running offered to sell these splendid New England-Made pianos at actual cost.

3d. We couldn't resist the opportunity to give our customers the greatest piano values they had ever known.

4th. Remember, only 100 pianos and 50 player-pianos in the sale, and the sale is the biggest success of the season.

The Guarantee

The R. H. White Co. jointly guarantee with the makers these pianos against any defects in material or workmanship. If such defects develop they will be replaced free of charge or will be replaced with a new piano of like grade without a penny of cost to the owner.

FILE NO. 113, EMILE GABORIAU'S CLASSIC PARISIAN MYSTERY STORY

the safe door. He took a key and said:

"Suppose this box is the safe door, that I wish to open the safe, you see me and wish to stop me. What would be your first impulse?"

"To draw your arm away to prevent your inserting the key."

"Precisely. Let us try it. Go on."

Fanferlot obeyed. The key, pulled aside from the lock, slipped along the box and traced on it a diagonal scratch, like the one on the Fauvel safe.

"Ah," said Fanferlot, "two persons were present at the robbery. One wished to take the money, the other to prevent it. The cashier is innocent, because he was at liberty to open the safe and would not have had a third person present."

"But on that supposition the banker is equally innocent. Look for the third rogue, or rather the real rogue, who stole the notes, and who is still at large. On the evening of the robbery the banker left his key in his secretary. The password to the safe was 'Gipsy,' the name of the cashier's friend. Find a man intimate enough with Prosper name and also privileged to enter the Fauvel chamber. Then you will have the guilty one."

"You seem to take great interest in this case," said Fanferlot.

M. Lecoq started nervously, frowned and said: "You are too curious, Master Squirrel. Be careful that you do not go too far. I have reasons for not appearing in this affair. I forbid you mentioning my name in it. All success will be credited to you. Don't try to find out what I choose to keep from you."

The great detective then ordered Fanferlot to tell the key experiment to the magistrate, which would get Prosper's release. If the magistrate asked about Nina Gipsy, Fanferlot was to say she had entered a house held to watch someone is suspected.

Finally M. Lecoq was instructed to secure employment as a valet to Count Louis de Clameran at the Hotel du Louvre, under the name of Joseph Dubois. He was to watch De Clameran closely and find especially all about his intimacy with Raoul de Lagors.

When Fanferlot left, M. Lecoq shed his spectacles and close wig, revealing the real Lecoq, whom nobody knew—a good-looking young man, with bold manner and piercing, brilliant eyes. He made up quickly as to know the circumstances of Gipsy's the red-whiskered man who had tricked Fanferlot.

Fanferlot, as instructed by M. Lecoq, explained the key theory to M. Patrigent, the magistrate, who wrote out one of those terrible declarations of "Not Proven." This restores liberty but not honor, saying the accused is not guilty, but not saying he is innocent.

The magistrate observed to his clerk:

"Here is another of those crimes justice cannot clear up. There is another file to be stowed away among police records."

With his own hand the magistrate wrote on the cover of the bundle of papers relating to Prosper's case its number of rotation: File No. 113.

CHAPTER VIII.
M. Verduret.

FREED from prison Prosper returned in despair to his house in the Rue Chaptal. The concierge told him Nina Gipsy had gone, leaving no address and that Prosper's father had paid and dismissed the servants. The concierge added that a friend of his father—a stout man with red whiskers—had been left in charge of the house by the elder Bartomy, pending the cashier's return.

Amazed at this news, Prosper hurried in and found in his rooms a stout man with red face, full lips, sharp eyes and red whiskers. He seemed perfectly at home.

He showed a letter from Prosper's father, begging the son to follow the stranger's advice. Then he introduced himself as M. Verduret and declared absolute belief in Prosper's innocence.

He advised Prosper to sell his furniture and go in hiding in order to trace and expose his hidden enemy. He also surprised Prosper by saying he had written Raoul de Lagors a note, in Prosper's name, asking him to call.

"He will come and I must hide as I can both see and hear him," continued M. Verduret. Before Prosper could say anything more a bell rang and Raoul de Lagors, the relative of Mme. Fauvel, came to the door just as M. Verduret hid behind a curtain.

Raoul greeted Prosper warmly and, offering him plenty of money, strongly advised that he leave the country and establish himself anew in America, as he had not been to Fauvel's for a month, he said.

Prosper asked about Madeline:

"Oh, she is entirely absorbed in a fancy dress ball to be given by the Landgraves. She has discovered a wonderful dressmaker, a stranger who suddenly appeared from no one knows where, and is to be the belle at a ball costume."

When Raoul left M. Verduret came out and said:

"He offered you half of his fortune, but it was stingy on his part. I have no doubt this sweet youth would cheerfully give ten thousand francs to have the ocean between you and him. Why? Who knows? Perhaps for the same reason that he has not been to his uncle Fauvel's house."

Then M. Verduret insisted that Prosper himself go to the banker's house. Just before they started the concierge brought a letter for Prosper. The address and letter were not written, but formed of printed letters carefully cut from a book and pasted on paper. The letter read:

"My Dear Prosper—A friend who knows the horror of your situation sends to you this missive. There is one heart, be assured that shares your sufferings. Go away—leave Paris. You are young. The future is before you. Go. May the money bring you happiness."

Enclosed were ten bank notes. The concierge said a commissionaire brought the letter. M. Verduret said that the notes were not sent by the thief, because they were numbered differently than the stolen ones. M. Verduret said, as though talking to himself: "So this letter did not come from the thief. It can come only from that other person who was near the safe at the time of the robbery, could not prevent it, but now feels remorse. The probability of two persons assisting at the robbery, as suggested by the scratch, is now a certainty."

Prosper could not comprehend. The red whiskered man went on:

"This letter was composed by a woman. No man uses the word 'succor.' Whence came these printed words. The type is small, clear and slender. The paper is thin and glossy. Not from a magazine or novel. Yet I have seen type like this. I'm sure I didot often uses it. So does Mame of Tours. Ah! I have it—these words have been cut from a prayer book."

M. Verduret moistened one of the words, detached it with a pin and found printed on the other side the Latin word "Deus."

"I know it," he said, "but what has become of the mutilated prayer book?"

The concierge came in with the commissionaire who had brought the message. The commissionaire said another commissionaire had given it to him to deliver. He was engaged by M. Verduret to find the other man. Then M. Verduret took Prosper to see M. Fauvel. The banker was told that Prosper, his prospects ruined, was going to America. His features relaxed, as though the banker were relieved. He said, with insulting tone, "Ah, he is going away."

Out in the street again Prosper complained of having been exposed to this scorn, but M. Verduret said: "I have found out what I wanted to know. I am convinced M. Fauvel had nothing to do with the robbery."

Just then Cavallion, the Fauvel clerk, who seemed to know M. Verduret, ran up hareheaded, exclaiming: "They have gone a quarter-hour ago."

"No time to lose," said M. Verduret. He hurried Prosper to No. 31 Rue Lafayette, where a sign read, "Modes and Confections." He showed Prosper a door on the second floor and gave him other orders. Prosper did so and found himself face to face with Madeline.

The banker's niece reproached him for seeking her presence. Prosper, pledged to secrecy by M. Verduret, could not explain. When Madeline said she pitied him Prosper cried "God drive me away and refused to explain. "To obey you, I let everyone suppose I left you of my own accord. You told me to forget you. You have never loved me. For me to forget—there is but one means, death. I know you do not love me, but I love you. O Madeline, God only knows how I love you!"

The third instalment of "File No. 113" will be printed in tomorrow's Boston AMERICAN.

"As Ye Sow, So Shall Ye Reap"

SUMMERFIELD'S, "THE HOUSE OF DIGNIFIED CREDIT," when entering into business adopted the rule that, "No matter what the cost, Satisfy the Customer," and this rule we have tried to live up to in every detail. We therefore attribute our extraordinary success to this important principle, and what is more gratifying is that our opening during the past week manifested that we have even greater prospects for the future.

In just two years Summerfield's, "The House of Dignified Credit," has increased nearly 75% in business. It has gained over 20,000 accounts. It has grown so rapidly and so wonderfully that it is the talk of the furniture world today, and every bit of that growth has been natural, and has been because the people want the quality and style manifested at the prices which are without question the best to be had in all New England, based on what the people want, what they like and what is best for them to have at the most liberal terms of credit.

This growth in business, in spite of the war, in spite of tight money, has been the most wonderful growth ever made by any furniture house in all New England, and it could only happen because the great New England Public want all that is in fair, honest merchandise at legitimate prices, and under convenient conditions to pay for same.

Pay us a visit this week and give us an opportunity to convince you of our claims. You are not obliged to make any purchases in order to be shown around our extensive and beautiful establishment, and furthermore, we have a large force of efficient salesmen who are only too glad to offer suggestions and give estimates. Remember, also, that "IT'S EASY TO PAY THE SUMMERFIELD WAY."

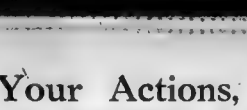
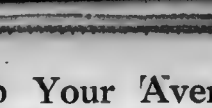
Your Actions, Not Your Promises, Count When They Figure Up Your Average



BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



HARVEY CROWD WAS OUT TO SWIPE WHITE'S CROWN

Johnny Harvey's handlers framed to cut a juicy melon at the expense of Charley White the classy Chicago lightweight, in the ring at the Atlas A. A. Tuesday night.

Right here it can be said that White held Harvey in high esteem. That's no exaggeration to a degree either. Remember the night he left for Boston? He'd rather fight anybody in the lightweight class than Harvey. He's a tough customer."

The New York Italian is a strong youth. He covers well and possesses a most puzzling style. Evidently no weight forfeits went with the Harvey-White muss; in fact, to judge by the many last-minute squabbles between the principals in the windup events at the Triple-A organization, the glove boys are seldom made to put up forfeits.

Take the two Lewis-Britton scraps, at that time Jack didn't weigh in for Ted, and the next time Ted didn't as much as show up when the weighing-in role rolled around.

THE CARD WERE STACKED.

The Harvey crowd had its entry ticketed to be as big as a house and to be so very strong that he would eat up White and thus be made. At 9 o'clock, the reported weighing-in hour, Harvey arrived with his handlers. Johnny allowed that he was over and smiled when he climbed on the scales. The scum wavered at 128½.

White and his mentor, Nate Lewis, threatened to cancel and were only pacified when Harvey claimed he would dry himself out and see what weight he could make at 8 o'clock. So White and Lewis warmed all night. Harvey was back at the clubhouse at 8. Again his face was wreathed in smiles as he stepped on the scales and this time his poundage was 140.

White and Lew raised and for an hour or so it looked as if the main bout would go by the board. But Mish Murrey managed to pacify the Chicago fighter and his manager, telling them that they would have trouble lining up Luther Boston bookings if they disappointed and that he would have the announcement made at ringside that Harvey had dodged the weight issue, etc., etc.

HARVEY CROWD SPLURGES.

A victory for Harvey over White would have put him in the exact center of pugdom's spotlight. His handlers thought the result following getting away with the weight question, and they put down a heavy commission on the general result, getting a fat price, and likewise wagered a big bundle that Harvey would stick. They got odds of 10 to 7 and 10 to 6 for this money and collected.

"New York Charley" White rendered the proper decision when he held the Chicago boy's right hand heavenward at the end of the twelve rounds. While Harvey bounded away from the post in great style, being quite a distance in front at the end of the seventh frame, White caught him and Johnny all but tossed it up in the stretch run. He was wabbly more than once, and very tired, and was fortunate to stick it out.

The White-Harvey "house" was a poor one. The big mail and the club members stayed away, fearing that the club had picked a set of setups for White. Ivy Lewis claimed that Harvey would deliver, and the New Yorker more than made good. He gave White a touch a fight as Charley has ever had, but for closing up like a punctured parachute, comering a la the ninth canto, would have landed a certain winner.

All signs indicate that the Atlas A. A. will be completely packed next Tuesday night. The main bout Ted (Kid) Lewis vs. Joe Mandot, is a good one, a great one. The versatile Lewis soon doesn't have much trouble making 135 pounds, though he generally hooks up with the welters, is the season's premier boxing sensation.

Though undoubtedly the fastest boxer welterweight today, he likewise a rugged fighting machine in fact mixes it equally as virilly as he jabs and feints. He's as fast as a comet, loves the toe-to-toe stuff and gameness is his middle moniker.

The last time Mandot, the star of the T. Telegram Welsh stable, showed in Boston he put it over Young Saylor, the Indianapolis Bearcat, who mussed up Charley White some six weeks ago at the Atlas A. A. and who defeated November 2 for another battle with the Chicago Hebrew. Mandot has had a big season. Johnny Dundee and Ad Wolgast are among the top-liners he has bested.

Boston boxing lovers see two great bouts in Lewis vs. Mandot, and White vs. Saylor. That's the kind of entertainment desired.

While the old gag has it it's best to have a local boy in the big set-to, all the Boston stars have backed up together, and until the right successors to Ferguson, Baldwin, Gallant et al. bob up the Atlas A. A. management should continue the thing of bringing two A-number-one boys to town weekly.

Barrett a Bear, and Cornell Hope Bucking Harvard

Football critics are paying high praise to Charley Barrett, captain of the Cornell eleven, Harvard's opponent at the Stadium Saturday. Barrett is a senior in the School of Mechanical Engineering and hails from Pittsburgh.

All Ithaca claims he is the greatest football player ever turned out at Cornell. He played on the freshman team and two years ago joined the varsity. Last year Barrett was quarterback and piloted the eleven during the entire season. He scored more points than any other player in the East.

He is rated a second Eddie Mahan in open field runs. He likewise has the knack for drop kicking and punting.

Barrett was chosen by practically every critic in the country last year as an All-American man, and promises to repeat this season, so so far he has shown remarkably brilliant form.

Eddie Mack to Run Game at Gloucester

Eddie Mack of Boston, has been appointed matchmaker of the Lenox A. C. of Gloucester, and is now preparing a card for his initial entertainment on Monday evening, November 1. Mack is trying to arrange a bout between Bay Wood of Fall River and Joe Chick, the Gloucester fisherman. If he is successful he will put it on as the main skirmish.

Mack has booked Mike Glover, the South Boston welterweight, for November 8, but as yet has not secured a suitable opponent for him.

Notes of the BOXERS

"DICK" STOSH of Cleveland, a former national amateur star, who is a newcomer in these parts, goes on with Terry Brooks at New London, October 31.

JOHN J. REISLER writes the Evening Mail, New York, that Young Brown, the star lightweight, is going West to fill several dates. Reisler thinks Brown will meet Young Saylor at Superior, Wis., November 25. That a date of January 1 is open for Young Saylor, Young Bonner, Young Brown or Young Tillman or Joe Rivers in Minneapolis.

LEACH CROSS hooks up with "Fighting" Fitzpatrick at the Broadway Sporting Club in Brooklyn Saturday night. Leach is picking soft ones these days in an endeavor to get back on Big Broadway.

FRED FULTON and Arthur Pelkey, the big fellows, clash in that dear old Oshkosh, Wis., burg Nov. 1. In their last meeting in the Wisconsin town they had a merry muss, seven knockdowns coming.

NEW HAVEN has offered Freddie Welsh $6 per cent. of the gross for a bout with Leach Cross. Manager Frankie Mack, but thus far Manager Hollis Callahan has not been heard from.

GEORGES "Wild Bert" Kenney, the New York light heavyweight, has reached Boston. He claims that he's never been knocked down, but admits defeated. Bill McMahon of Strong, Me., is handling "Wild Bert." He is modest and states he only seeks dates with "Gunboat" Smith, Jim Flynn, Levinsky Weinert, Jack Dillon and those sort for his charge.

JOE MANDOT, in meeting Ted Lewis, calls the English fighter, is taking on one of the fastest and most skillful fighters in the business. Joe says he always does well against the clever ones and isn't afraid Lasi he won't beat Ted.

JOE LEVY, former manager of Joe Rivers, is to open up the boxing game in Chattanooga, Tenn. Joe is handling the affairs of Benny Palmer, the new Memphis star. The first match probably will be with Grover Hayes, the Philadelphia veteran.

CONNECTICUT reports came out of Albany anent the Joe Chick-K. O. Sweeney set-to Monday night. A flaring headline in the Albany report said "Chick Was Game But Licked." It adds that the Gloucester man's head was almost jabbed off his shoulders. Chick is praised for his Joe Grim-like gameness, but is credited with having run second.

Saylor Claims Will Surely Beat White

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—Ray Bronson, manager of Milburn Saylor, the "knock 'em cold" Hoosier lightweight, has received word from the Boston promoters who will stage the battle between Saylor and Charley White before the end of the month, pointing to a record-breaking house.

If Saylor is fortunate enough to repeat his last effort over the Chicago Jiffer there could hardly be an excuse for Frankie White refusing to meet him. Saylor is full of confidence and believes he will bang the "wallaloo" sign on White when they meet in their second encounter.

Classy Bantams in Ring.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—What should prove to be a corking bantamweight contest is scheduled to take place at the Clermont Avenue Rink in Brooklyn tonight. The principals will be Dutch Brandt of Brooklyn and Jimmy Murphy of the East Side. Two hundred orders complete the card, the principals being Frankie Burns of Jersey City and Joe Gorman and Gene Moriarity and Andy Gorman.

ORDER OF BOXING HEAD AVERTED POSSIBLE RIOT

By ED CURLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—There were very few of the 10,000 spectators at Madison Square Garden Tuesday evening, when Frank Moran wrecked the hopes of Jim Coffey, who realized that by a slight margin of good fortune a desperate situation that would have undoubtedly resulted in a riot of serious consequences was narrowly averted.

Fifteen minutes before the big battle was to start Coffey was seen walking down the gaze and defiantly announced he was not going to enter the ring. An attachment, which had been plastering against his share of the receipts, brought about the startling crisis.

Tex Rickard, big, blond-haired battler, knowing about the court order, declared determinedly to the promoters. "No money, no fight."

There was no use arguing with the promoter, for the situation had been threshed out repeatedly, and always brought forth the same response.

"No money, no fight."

Down in the vast amphitheatre were those 10,000 frenzied fight "fans," who had been whipped up to the nerve racking point, for they were to see the best two big white men in the country fight for the privilege of hurling a well-earned defy at Jess Willard and his world's crown.

MIGHT HAVE CAUSED RIOT.

The management knew all this and they also knew that it would be verging on foolhardiness to tell those "fans" there would be no fight. The bare announcement, a mighty hush, and then almost a raging mob would do under those circumstances can easily be imagined.

There was only one thing to do—put the hair-trigger situation up to the State Athletic Commission and hope for relief. Fred Wenck, the recently appointed chairman of the board, was appealed to, and the case explained. It did not take Wenck long to see the difficulty. Court order or not the chairman ordered the management to hand over the $6,500, Moran's share, within a few minutes. Ike Dorgan, Moran's manager, had the money.

Two minutes before Wenck handed over the money Moran, satisfied he would not receive his guarantee, started for the street. He was making his way through the crowd when Wenck hastened Willie Lewis to overtake the fighter and hand him the check. When Moran returned and learned his money was secure, he undressed again, entered the ring and put on the show of story that will bring him a fortune.

The action of Wenck in defeating a court order issued by Chief Justice O'Dwyer astonished those in the know. The act was unwarranted, however, and the fight held, which was all that Wenck desired. He is speaking of his move the chairman said

WENCK DEFENDS HIMSELF.

"When I decided to allow Moran to get his money I was guided by common sense. I really did not know whether I had the authority or not, but when I looked over that crowded house and realized what it meant to call off the fight at that late hour—well, I did the sensible thing."

Meaning that he was going to be charged with contempt of court for this drastic action Wenck consulted Deputy State Attorney General Obermeyer and the latter official decided that the chairman was strictly within his rights, as under the law he has absolute jurisdiction over box ing.

Ike McKitrick, who attached Moran's share in leaving this town for Coffey in the hope of box attorney, and co-counsel, that he is entitled to the $1,400 he claims Moran owes. McKitrick declares he has only a fro the fighter in which the latter admits the indebtedness.

And there the case now stands.

Alameda Is to Pay Tribute to Duffy Lewis

ALAMEDA, Cal., Oct. 21.—Duffy Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Lewis of No. 1542 Verdi street, Alameda, and a member of the Boston world's championship team has been tendered an invitation to be the guest of the Alameda Chamber of Commerce at a banquet in his honor November 10.

Lewis played his first game in Alameda. He was a member of St. Mary's College team and the Oakland (Coast League) team.

His share in the recent World's Series was $3,581, which formed exactly the amount, his parents claim, he needs to pay off the first mortgage on the cosy home he built for his wife a year ago.

Tinker and Co. Get Medals from League

CHICAGO Oct. 21—The Federal League has presented Joe Tinker and his players with handsome gold medals as a reward for winning the pennant. "Inasmuch as the National Commission failed to accept our challenge for a series to decide the championship, your team is the unquestioned champion of the world," reads President Gilmore's letter to Tinker.

TAFT HAS SOLD CUBS, CLAIMS NEW YORK

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Although Charles P. Taft, the principal stockholder of the Cubs, emphatically denied in Cincinnati that the Chicago Nationals had been sold, there is the best of authority for the statement that the deal already has been put through.

A report that has gained much credence here is to the effect that John McGraw, manager of the Giants, has purchased, or would shortly purchase, an interest in the Windy City team.

In July, 1914, at the time that the Cubs were on the market and the Giants were playing in Chicago, Manager McGraw and Captain Huston called on Mr. Taft and made a proposition to take the club off his hands. The amount that Messrs. McGraw and Huston offered Taft for the club was far greater than the other offers, with the result that Taft agreed to sell out.

FIRST DEAL FELL THROUGH.

The deal was practically completed, as far as the three were concerned, but the bottom fell completely out of it when Harry K. Hempstead refused to give McGraw his release.

Later on McGraw helped swing the deal which made Captain Huston and Colonel Ruppert the owners of the New York Americans.

In the early report from Cincinnati it was said that McGraw acted as "agent" in the deal. Many of McGraw's friends in New York, some of whom have followed the dealings of the National League closely, are inclined to believe that McGraw was actually trying to buy the Cubs, and that, if successful, a prominent New Yorker was to be interested with him.

McGRAW DRAWS $30,000 PER.

McGraw's contract with the Giants has still two more seasons to go before it expires. In the spring of 1913 the "Little Napoleon" affixed his signature to a New York contract for five years at a New York record of $30,000 per season.

Another chance that might tend to lend interest to the report that McGraw is trying to buy the Cubs was the fact that Charles P. Taft was in New York last Saturday. It is not a subject for "inquiry" at all times, but McGraw did not leave until Sunday. McGraw is in Washington, playing the races at Laurel.

THE RABBIT'S COLUMN by Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

SINCE the World's series came to a close I have been in receipt of a big batch of letters and postal cards from admirers saying that as far as honors among the Boston shortstops go I am in first place. There seems to be an inclination on the part of a lot of "fans" to call Everett Scott the Red Sox' goat in the Big Show, while its nice to read happy things about one's self I am frank to confess that I don't like this thing of having Scott put on the griddle.

WHILE reporting the World's Series I had a lot of chats with my friends on the Red Sox and can assure the "fans" that they have the bunch that the White Sox, and not the Tigers, will give them their stiff-

SCOTT did not falter for Carrigan in the World's Series; he was one of Bill's sturdiest workmen. Newspaper humorists and unfeeling "fans" are always prone to dress up a "goat," and, just because Scott failed to cover second base in the first game, thus allowing a phenomenal stop by Jack Barry to go to waste, they pointed him. Yes, with Scott covering, Barry's great stop would have saved the way for a timely twin killing, and, with it pulled, Shore, not Alexander, would have had the victory.

SCOTT'S failure to get over can be, and was, excused. No stop seemed possible when the ball started out, so Everett was correct to blame for failing to run over to the station. However, I did not criticise that play at the time it happened, nor will I speak about it now.

A LOT of readers of the AMERICAN have asked me to issue my opinion about Scott and I am glad of the opportunity. He is a finished shortstop and I have never said I've had a look at all the up-to-date whirlwinds. He is a sure man on a ground ball, owns an arm of steel, covers as much ground as any of them, myself included, and is a heady, game workman

THEY tell me Scott doesn't hit much. Well, he doesn't have to. Didn't the Red Sox win both the American League championship and the World's championship with the batting average .220 or so? That may be a puny notch, but it's plenty hefty enough for so steady and brilliant an infielder.

MAHAN AND NASH FAVOR SUMMER BASEBALL

Yale's athletic housecleaning, which swept Harry LeGore, the mighty football, and four comrades out of the college limelight as sport representatives of the Blue, finds little favor at Harvard

Foremost among the undergraduates who favor Summer baseball for college athletes are Edward W. Mahan, captain of the football eleven, and a pitcher of rare ability, and Monty L. Nash, captain of the nine.

Captain Mahan, questioned as to his attitude in regard to Summer baseball, said

MAHAN HITS OUT STRAIGHT.

"I favor summer baseball, heart and soul. Back in my sophomore days I remember that I wrote a lengthy thesis on Summer ball and, in gathering my material I was unable to find a man with even one good argument against college men playing during the Summer months.

"If a man is a natural ball player, I see no harm in him spending his vacation playing the game. Certainly it is better than for him to coop himself up in some stuffy office, or working at another occupation where the remuneration is much less than playing baseball.

Captain Nash said when asked to touch his opinion

"I, too am heartily in favor of allowing college men to play baseball, under the right conditions, in the Summer. I consider the playing of the game just as beneficial as any other occupation open to men during the Summer."

DEAN BRIGGS IS MUM.

Dean LeBaron R. Briggs, chairman of the Harvard athletic committee, told the AMERICAN that he did not wish to be quoted on the subject. He also said that the time was not ripe for him to comment on the LeGore case, which may mean that Harvard is going out of its way to request that the disqualified athletes be allowed to compete against the Crimson. Dean Briggs, it is said, before the case came to a head, was strongly opposed to suspending the men from Yale athletics because of what he considered a mere technicality.

Dr. Frank Sexton, former varsity baseball coach, is a strong in favor of Summer ball, as is Dana J. F. Wingate, captain of the 1912 and 1913 teams, and Russell Ayres, last season's leader.

Conboy Back with Boston College

It begins to look as if Tufts has a big job on his hands to defeat Boston College in Saturday's game. While rumors have emanated from Tufts that the team has suffered the loss of several varsity men, or is crippled in two games, Boston College is in O. K. condition.

With the exception of the pivot position the team is in better shape than ever before this Fall, both Holland terrors for the squad yesterday and Coach Mahoney put it through its daily lessons in brisk shape. The addition of Roger Conboy strengthens the eleven considerable, despite the fact that he will be the lightest man on the line, his speed will compensate for that drawback. Conboy played end on the 1912 team and was with Catholic University last year. The year he decided to return to B. C. but was kept off the gridiron until his status was determined by the Athletic Board.

The Boston College line is a very heavy one, the average weight from tackle to tackle being well over 190 pounds.

Brown Scrubs Get a Tie with Varsity

PROVIDENCE, Oct 21—With the varsity backfield playing with the second the former university scrimmage ended in a 7-7 tie Jimmy Murphy was at quarter on the scrubs while Jennil and Conroy were stationed at the two halfback positions. The varsity braced finely in the last period, Captain Andrews and Hillhouse charging through the scrub line in sensational fashion Nothing but fifteen yards cost the varsity a second touchdown

Syracuse Squad in Trim.

SYRACUSE, Oct 21—Brown University will find Syracuse traveling on high when the former goes out on the Providence gridiron Saturday. Syracuse's goal line has not yet been crossed this Fall and Coach O'Neill is in high hopes that Brown will be held. After Brown, Michigan comes next on the Orange's list

W. & J. Ready for Yale.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 21.—Tackle Witherspoon is back with the W. & J. squad and the "rooters" are happy and satisfied that Yale is in for another big surprise Saturday. Captain Weebetcher has also rebonned his nose.

NO CHANGES IN HARVARD LINEUP IN CORNELL GAME

By SYDE LYNES.

As the work for the Harvard eleven is always light on a Friday, so that the men may have a chance to rest up for the game Saturday, after the arduous labors of the week just closing, the Crimson coaches have only today in which to bring the eleven from its state of disorganization and inefficiency, startling to say the least, at this rather late stage, to a unified machine, one not only capable of staving off the attack of Cornell's heavy linemen, but one which can also tear holes through them for the progress of the Crimson backs.

About the only bit of hopeful news which filters from the Stadium is the fact that Tom Enwright, the lone fullback and the leading candidate for this position, has sufficiently recovered from the injury to his knee to get into his togs and run through signals with the rest of the squad. While his injury has not thoroughly healed, he will be able to take a little light work and keep in touch with formations. Barring further injury, there is every reason to believe that Enwright will be in shape to play at least part of the Princeton game. For this small ray of hope Harvard supporters are duly thankful.

Al Minnick, on the other hand, is getting back in condition much more slowly than had been expected. He still walks around with the aid of a cane, the lameness resulting from the injury to his ankle. Minnick will not be able to start against Cornell, and that same failure to charge low as has been evident in practically every game this season.

The greatest fault in the line lies with Cowen, who played like a big chap and should play an All-American game. We should hesitate to say that Cowen is lazy It is certain, however, he needs something stronger than coaxing to get him into the thick of it for the best there is in him.

It has always been our impression, and we believe we have once or twice in previous years seen our impression justified, that if his opponent would step up to Cowen and hand him a hard fight, the fur would fly, and his opponent would have tough sledding the rest of the game.

The varsity is lining up just as it did at the start of the Virginia game last Saturday, and it will enter the same manner. Cornell is playing steadily at tackle, and should have little worry for by the ability to hang onto the position, while pending the return of Parsons, Curtis is holding the other tackle berth

Harte and Soucy are getting the calls at ends, and Wilcox has a stranglehold on quarter There does not seem to be a better centre trio than Cowen, Taylor and Dadmun on the horizon, at present, the next best guard candidate, in fact, being the man at his possibilities and Taylor is far and away the best pivotal bet on the squad.

Soucy usually has the call for the left wing on the Crimson eleven, but when Harte is in the game he goes at left end, and Soucy takes charge of the right side. It is simply a case where the physical peculiarities of a man have to be taken into consideration Harte can't tackle on his left side, which would frequently be necessary under kicks if he were playing at the right end of the line.

Harvard men sniff at the boast that Barrett, Cornell's captain and clever quarterback, will outkick Captain Nahan Saturday Cornellians base their optimism on the fact that Barrett's recent average has been close to fifty yards per kick Nahan pulls off sixty-yard drives and Harvard rooters are confident he will at least hold his own with Barrett.

Some men are doomed to experience hard luck in athletics. This is the case with Rollins, a sub halfback. He is an unusually clever man in a broken field—witness his runback of a punt fifty yards in the Virginia game—and his general carrying of the ball is good, while he kicks pretty well But he is the same type of player as Mahan, and but one man of the same type can be played in a backfield, if it is to be well balanced. The result is that Rollins only gets his chance to shine when Mahan goes out. It is a safe bet he will be given a chance to win his "H" in the Yale game.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21. The White Sox have yanked Pitcher Shackleford and outfielder Chappell back from Milwaukee It is understood that Chappell will be turned over to Cleveland.

BUTTERWORTH IS ON DECK AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21—The loss of Harry Legore to the Yale football team seems to have put more fight than ever into the squad, at least in practice, that the result will be in a real football game will be apparent Saturday on the gridiron with Washington and Jefferson.

The squad was put through a hard drill yesterday. Captain Wilson drove his men up and down the field in signals and then they were sent in for two ten-minute periods of scrimmage.

The first was against the ineligibles, which Harry Legore joined, in an effort to help as much as he could toward making the first team a success. The ineligibles did not have possession of the ball long enough for Legore to star

Without resorting to any open play, Wilson and Smith carried the ball from the kickoff for a touchdown in consecutive plays, Nat Scovil going over for the count. The second touchdown was also made by Scovil in the same manner.

The second ten-minute scrimmage period was between the varsity and the scrub, but the scrub never had a chance to get in a chance to take the ball over the goal line for two touchdowns, Neville and Smith registering touchdowns.

The Yale coaching staff has been augmented by the addition of Frank Butterworth '95, a plunging fullback, who made Walter Camp's all-American eleven easily. Butterworth is here to take "Hal" Scovil in hand and teach him how to become a real ground-gainer

SCOVIL A LIKELY LOOKER.

Scovil has the weight and, part of the time, the dash to make a great fullback, but much of his energy in the past has been misdirected Butterworth, in whom Frank Hinkey has all sorts of confidence, is expected to develop Scovil into a back who will fill Legore's position creditably. It began to look like "It's a cold day days" in the Yale camp today with Hinkey, Butterworth, Rogers et Bull on the field together

Ambitious Pugs Are After Frank Moran

NEW YORK, Oct 21.—"Young" Ahern, Tom McKitrick's dancing master, and "Battling" Levinsky, Danny Morgan's heavyweight star, are both anxious to get a crack at Frank Moran. Levinsky is willing to bet $5,000 to see Ahern and Butterworth in the squared ring. Ahern stands ready to tackle Moran, either in the ring or in a street brawl, and will fight him for love, marbles or money

Moran has signified a willingness to take on Levinsky, provided he can get some real money for signing articles.

Parkes Back with Tufts.

Captain Parkes is back in Tufts' practice and the "rooters" are a glorful lot. Thursday was shifted from tackle to centre in yesterday's scrimmage, which resulted in a scoreless tie, and showed splendid form at the position. Drumm, substitute quarterback, was switched to left half on the varsity and gave a good account of himself. Mitchell was relegated to the scrubs. Fullback Deane, laid up with a damaged hand, was given a rest and Stanton worked in his station.

Penney Has Stiff Practice.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct 21.—The University of Pennsylvania coaches put the varsity through a stiff scrimmage with both the scrub and the freshmen It was the last hard work out before the Pittsburgh game Saturday, an only signal drill will be held today and tomorrow The Franklin Field gates were closed, even to Pennsylvania students, and the coaches worked out all the new plays with the "dummy" practice and actual scrimmages.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By RIGHT FIELD

CHARLES LINCOLN HERZOG, once guardian of the hot corner for the Boston Nationals, is now working in the same capacity for McGraw—whose arch enemy he now is—and there's a warning up in Cincinnati as manager of the Reds, sits unmoved while the "fans" on the Ohio metropolis rant and rave and petition the owners to give the club a new manager "Buck" didn't seem to care, the last time we talked with him at baseball headquarters in the Back Bay, whether he played the national pastime in 1914 or not.

WE expect to see this peppery little manager again heading the Redlegs, however. One of the foundation stones for the future success of the team will be Fred Toney, who won 19 of his games while his club was going 46% This game pitcher, who can pitch the first and final game of any series, if need be, was rejected by the Cubs and the Robins, but C. B. Murphy, who had a hand in the Chicago rejection, now admits he considers Toney a second Amos Rusie.

THE real problem for the Reds to meet is at second base and in the outfield Beall and Williams are the leading candidates for left field Tommy Clarke and "Dick" Hoese just simply can't get along together for another year and the sturdy catcher is sure to be traded There's a good chance he will be picked up by George Stallings.

JOHN BEALL, a graduate from Milwaukee, has already signed up. Kenneth Williams, who comes out of the Northwest and showed with the Reds on their last Boston trip, is booked for stardom by many of the experts who have seen him play.

TOMMY LEACH the veteran, a shipping all to the Braves and may be used for coach in third. But Augustus Heffmann and devise it is a scary one to look for that sort of daily work along. Leach is well fixed financially and it wouldn't disturb him overmuch if he was cut adrift.

OF the Reds' pitchers, Dale performed at a 500 pace, Mc-Kenney at .455, Schneider at .450; Lear at .400, "Lefty" George at .300, and Brown, a rookie, was seen in eight games, being charged with two defeats

THE Reds are one of the teams that the 50-50-second clubs are trying to pin "Heinie" Zimmerman onto A big Cubs-Reds trade was talked of a little while ago and, while denials were promptly issued, there may be something doing later on.

ONE of the grievances of the Cincinnati "fans" is over the fact that Herzog suspended Tommy Clarke a few days before the season closed. They also recite that the Reds were last in 1914 and seventh this year. One thing can be said in Herzog's favor is that he silenced the team running squeezers permanently. The Reds fast evidently didn't increase the attendance at home or abroad

PLENTY OF GOOD BOOTS ON GREEN

HANOVER, Oct 21—Coach Cavanaugh helped out by assistants Boyle and Randall gave the Dartmouth squad a long drill in defensive play. No scrimmage took place, Cavanaugh desiring to play it safe so as not to have any of the regulars injured before it comes to square off against Princeton on Saturday

First of all, there was a signal drill. Then the light practice work took place. Scully and Barrows were drilled in drop-kicking and both warriors dropped some beauties over the uprights. Thielscher, Gerrish and Scully also lifted a number of field goals from difficult angles

Dartmouth seems so long on kicking talent this Fall that the "rooters" will be badly disappointed if the varsity does not do some field goal work over the Princeton battle

Gerrish's punting is daily growing better. His efforts are now averaging between forty-three and forty-five yards and have just the right height to them to enable his ends to get down the field in good time for the kicks. Gerrish was disappointing for a while, but this week he is showing up in good form, and, after all, the Big Green may not be huge in this department, though the early forecasts that it would be a lame-ishly weak.

The Princeton squad leaves for New York at 6 o'clock this evening and will go from there to Princeton.

Princeton Ends Shine in Workout

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—The number of days before the big games is narrowing down and each day the Princeton team shows a slight improvement over the day before While the warriors still keep hammering away at the fundamentals of the game they are also taking up more complicated plays and slowly mastering them so that they can execute them with ease and precision they displayed on end runs

Just to prevent the ends are coming in for the lion's share of attention. They were on Palmer Field before and after the other squads and were the last to leave Following a long period of line coaching, a kicking and scrub scrimmaged for half an hour and Coach Roper and the Freshmen against the first team.

Malden High Badly Crippled.

"Harvard Plays" Baffle Cornell Varsity Squad

ITHACA, Oct. 21.—The Cornell scrubs used a series of Harvard set plays on the varsity and ripped the defence up for repeated gains. The regulars looked very bad, but the coaches are satisfied, as the first string men were beginning to get too "cheesy" as a result of their recent contests

The scrubs had possession of the ball practically the entire time Lewis and Benedict had great luck carrying the ball and Shock also proved a good ground-coverer.

The practice showed the coaches the weak spots in the varsity defence and they are confident that the line will be so "tight" by Saturday that Harvard will find it a hard matter to get through for any substantial gains.

Hero Barrett is in the best of form, while Shiverick and Mallet, two of Cornell's other brilliant stars, are on edge Today's scrimmage winds up the work. Tonight the squad, accompanied by coaches and trainers, leaves for Boston. The "rooters" won't get away until tomorrow night.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Tom Sharkey will try a come back in the ring at the opening boxing tournament for the James E. Sullivan memorial fund at the Crescent and New York athletic clubs October 29 and 30. Koji Yamada, Japans cue wizard, proved himself a star exponent of the 14.1 balkline game in the opening block of his 1,500-point match for the world a championship with "Willie" Hoppe, the title holder and the foremost billiardist of the past all other generations, the block ending 300 to 196 in the champion's favor The two experts went on in Convention Hall and a big crowd turned out for the bout.

Only in spots was the play especially brilliant, as good and as tight as would be expected from two such wonderful players. There was little attempt at safety play Yamada evidently figures that his best chance to dethrone Hoppe is to go on about his business and try and bunch a lot of big runs Then Hoppe evidently figures that he cannot lose, despite tight tussle Yamada gave him in the championship tournament in New York in April, 1914, and his play, on the whole, was of the open variety.

In the sixteenth inning Hoppe made his big run of the night, a brilliantly gathered 123. This gave him a wide lead over Yamada, but four innings later the Jap gamely came back with a run of 118

Hoppe was 235 points to the good at one time, but Yamada's long run cut the distance in half Thereafter they counted pretty well together.

The second block will be played tonight and the final block tomorrow night

The Story of a Doctor's Wife

1915 Lenore Asks Connie Why She Doesn't Explain to Her Husband

Lenore wheeled Harvey Blake to Betty's house.

By THE WIFE

CHAPTER XXVII.

My heart turned cold. I felt all Browning's descriptions of coming death—"the fog in my throat and the mist in my face"—but a rapturous exclamation from Betty saved me from betraying myself.

"Oh, Jim, are you going to re-christen the 'Nacomis' and call it the 'Betty E'?"

"I phoned the skipper to do that the very day I started for Chicago," said Jim serenely.

"You were sure of me!" said Betty, archly.

And, to show how sure, Jim felt called on to kiss her brazenly in the presence of her family.

I had a day of torture like that to go through. I had all their absorbed young love to watch, Mother's face was so peaceful; father's so proud. Soon they must remember their grief over the loss of Mabel; soon their conservative natures were to be shocked and harrowed by the knowledge that their oldest daughter was going to be divorced by her husband, but today they were happy. I wondered when I would have to tell them all the truth about Peter and why he would not be best man at the wedding.

And wondering and questioning and suffering from the hideous uncertainty of it all, I had to go about smiling and cheerful. There was a time when I thought that the stories of people who went smiling to the guillotine with heads held high in pride were little fairy tales of history. I now know that a martyr at the stake, with hot and hungry flames licking around tortured flesh, might smile to the very last.

That afternoon, Lenore wheeled Harvey Blake's chair over to our house. He was still too shaken and weak to be lifted into an automobile and his shattered nerves would have made a ride in one a riot of horrible agony. Marian worked steadily by his side. Her face was no longer beautiful—smile had obliterated all its youth and loveliness. But there was a proud look in her eyes and an expression of security about her lips. Quiet dignity was the portion Marian Farley had wrested from life.

"We're going to be re-married right here in your parlor, if you'll let us, Connie," said Marian. We knew you would, so we told Doctor Allison to be here at four."

It was a strange wedding and no festal meats followed it. After the ceremony the bride wheeled her invalid home; Betty and Jim fell into each other's arms and mother turned to father with tears in her eyes, but as she held out her hand to him I knew they were lovers, too.

"Will you come up to my room with me, Lenore—there is something I must say to you." I said very quietly—so quietly I could hardly hear my voice above the thudding of my heart.

COVVIE TELLS LENORE

Once in my room I turned to the girl to whom I meant to give my husband.

"Lenore, I wrote to Dr. Drayton last night and I told him that I should stay in Chicago in order that he might sue me for desertion. Be good to him, won't you, dear"

Then weakness overmastered me and I flung myself on my couch to seek the solace of tears. Suddenly Lenore's arms went round me and a steady voice asked me very gently, but with a joy it could not conceal

"You don't love your husband, Miss Connie? It was all a mistake—you never loved him, did you?"

I sat up and looked at Lenore. I was too proud now to take refuge in pride.

"I love him too much, Lenore, to try to hold him. I want to give him to the woman who can understand him. You see, I love him more than I love myself now—but he doesn't want me. It's you for whom he cares, and so I'm giving him his freedom, that he may have you."

Lenore's face went quite white and she sat looking at me steadily. Then she laughed, but laughed unsteadily. "No! He doesn't love me, and I don't love him, Miss Connie. I was always afraid of the Doctor. You remember that, but I love you. You've always been better to me than anyone else—better than the mother who deserted me when I was a baby.

"Mrs. Blake is going to take her husband out to California for the Winter. I'm going along—they've asked me. I want to travel and see the world. And I wouldn't give up nursing for any man I've met yet. Think of Lenore Wallie—a little scrub woman in a slum boarding house, going out to California in the Blake's private car. Me for that!"

Perhaps it didn't ring true—but I tried to believe. I wanted to believe. And I remembered the letter I had sent Peter, and the determination I had made to be brave.

"I'll send Doctor Drayton after you, Lenore," I said steadily.

Suddenly Lenore began to sob.

LENORE SPEAKS BACK

"Don't, Miss Connie. Let me alone—let me live my life my way. —I can't say much to you. But I'd go further than across the Continent. I'd go over the edge of the world and out of it rather than take anything from you that belonged to you. I would, Miss Connie. I—I didn't think you cared for the doctor. I thought it was Mr. Farley. I didn't understand very well, I guess, and he doesn't either. Why don't you explain?"

"Explain!" Suddenly I wondered how Peter interpreted my staying in Chicago; whether he thought I was trying to take Jim away from Betty. And what would he think tomorrow soon when my letter came to him. Suddenly I knew I must get back to Peter at once and talk it all over. I must see Peter. But I couldn't run away to my master's wedding, and he wouldn't come to it.

Ahead of me stretched a week of agony. The date for Betty's wedding was Sept. 27. Until then I must endure the final agony I had brought on myself. My letter to Peter was the last muddle I had caused in my own life. I must endure until after the wedding. But after it—what?

Mystery of the Eskimos

Unique Among the Races in Preferring to Live in Arctic Cold

By GARRET P. SERVISS

THERE is nothing more interesting or more educative in the magnificent halls of the American Museum of Natural History, here in New York, than the lifelike figures and scenes representing the aboriginal ("from the beginning") inhabitants of the American half of the world. Among these are some groups showing the daily life and occupation of the Eskimos, one of which, an Eskimo woman fishing through a hole in the ice, is herewith reproduced by photography.

There is a deep mystery enveloping the Eskimos. They may be called the people of the North Pole, for they dwell farther north than any other race and partially surround the Arctic end of the earth's axis. When they are brought down into the Temperate Zone they waste away.

According to the Encyclopedia Americana, the total number of Eskimos in existence does not exceed 40,000 and these are scattered all across the northern end of America, the Arctic islands, Greenland, and a part of the coast of Siberia. They do not extend farther south than from 55 to 60 degrees north latitude.

How did they come to be where they are? Did their race spring into existence in the far north, independent, from the beginning, of the other races of mankind; or are they the descendants of some ancient, forgotten people, driven toward the north by a stronger race, or by climatic changes, in prehistoric times? There is a tendency among ethnologists at present to regard the Eskimos as in some way akin to the American Indians. But their history is unknown, and they cannot themselves enlighten us as to their origin. They are evidently a very ancient people, for like all remnants of old races, such as the Basques, they persistently retain their original characteristics and customs, as well as language.

An exceedingly romantic and fascinating theory concerning the origin of the Eskimos is that of Professor Boyd Dawkins, who maintained that they were the sole survivors of the prehistoric "cavemen" of Western Europe. The arguments in favor of this view are clearly summed up in Professor John Fiske's "Discovery of America."

Why Women Lie---When They Do

The Complaint of a Masculine Critic Answered by Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

A SEEMINGLY intelligent man asks me the following question:

Is there a woman in America that will not wilfully lie and deceive? A business man in Cleveland, O., made the remark to me one day that he had been in business twenty-eight years, and in that time he had never met a woman who would not lie for money or social effect; and I say, is it possible. Respectfully, HOMER F.

When we come down to the real basis of things, it is pretty hard to find a man or woman who is not guilty of some small prevarication each day.

Almost every business man is obliged to be courteous and polite to callers who bore him unutterably and take up his precious time. When the bore or I am trespassing on your patience" the poor slave of business is obliged to say, "Not at all," while in his heart he is wishing himself upon a desert island a thousand leagues from bores.

Again, he finds himself obliged from social consideration to accept a dinner invitation, either at the home of an acquaintance, or at the club, yet he does not enjoy the occasion, but is forced to say that he has had a charming time on taking leave of his host.

In large financial transactions, the man who is absolutely truthful today would bring a salary in any museum. The little lie in such situations is called "business acumen," and "shrewdness," and "cunning," and "quick wit"—any name, indeed, save its own ugly one.

In the hours devoted to gallantry and love-making, man prides himself upon his ability to tell sweet lies, which women believe. As for woman's untruthfulness, it is a wonder we know what to speak the truth at all, since man has so encompassed her with fales conditions, and made such unreasonable demands of her, that she has never dared to be absolutely honest and frank with her, or even with herself.

I often wonder just when he began to impress upon her mind that she was a being so utterly unlike himself in her natural passions, her aims, her rights, her obligations. Surely in the early, primitive races woman was not forced to such deception as the civilized world has made necessary.

Man now makes it obligatory upon woman to declare herself as emotionless as a disembodied spirit, else he distrusts her purity. I once knew a wife who was unwise enough to tell her husband that some years before she met him a man had put his arm about her waist during a promenade. She had rebuked him and never saw the man afterward; yet the husband became morbid and jealous and unkind after this incident was related to him, and insulted his wife with suspicions of her respectability, declaring that she must have caused him to act as he did by her indiscretions.

So long as men demand much more of women that they give, woman must be forced to lie and deceive. Only when he is as willing to overlook errors and follies as he expects her to be in considering his will she become truthful.

Almost everything that woman is man made her. She is often extravagant because he continually pays attention to the fashionably attired women, even while he scoffs at fashion. She frequently neglects the domestic virtues for more showy accomplishments because man passes the domestic woman by with polite indifference.

It would be well for man to ask himself what he has done toward making higher standards for woman before he criticizes her too severely.

A Forgotten Trifle

Mrs. Brownsome: "Why, to be sure, Timothy! I knew there was something else!"

A PROOF of the patriotism of the non-combatant classes in Europe is offered in the enthusiasm with which the proprietors of kennels in Moscow have offered to begin to devote themselves to the training of dogs destined to be sent to the front as "brothers of mercy."

It has become a favorite occupation of the upper classes in Europe to indulge in this highly sentimental and humanitarian work. The dogs are being trained not only to search for the wounded on the dreadful battlefields and to find their way back to their masters and friends, but also to warm the

Remedies Used in the War

No remedy is accepted by the French War Department unless it complies with certain well-defined requirements. Cadum ointment meets with all these requirements, because 1,000,000 boxes of it were used by the soldiers and sailors of France during the present war by order of the Minister of War and the Health Department. It is not a secret preparation, as the name of every ingredient is printed upon each box, and when they found out it knew exactly what it was doing. It is really surprising how quickly Cadum ointment relieves the torture and itching of skin troubles. It helps to heal an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin with the first application, and has proved a blessing to thousands who have suffered for years with disfiguring skin affections. 50c. and $1. DR. MYERS PLANS TO GET SHAW 1,000 VOTES

"I'll have 1,000 men from Tremont Temple vote for William Shaw for Governor on election day," claims the Rev. Cortland Myers, pastor of Tremont Temple.

Dr. Myers is one of the strongest advocates for prohibition in Boston. At every meeting he speaks of this cause.

"Nothing is more important in Boston this coming election than for its citizens to put morality into their voting," says Dr. Myers.

"We must come out for the man who stands for the preservation of our homes, our State and our country."

The Rev. William M. Tufts, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Columbus avenue, says in reference to the Shaw campaign:

"I am glad to be named among those who stand for the prohibition cause. To advocate prohibition means moral courage. It was once a very unpopular cause. It cannot stay longer be put in this division.

"The average person is getting his eyes opened. Hundreds of those who were identified with one of the old parties are now enrolled in the cause of prohibition. They have found that it is one of the most vital questions before the public today.

"Everyone who has had anything to do with politics knows William Shaw. The honor has been given him because he has a past which has been brightened by his good acts and his straightforward policies.

"Those who vote for Mr. Shaw vote for a man who has been allied with the things that are the noblest in this world. It is no wonder that so many young people are flocking to his standard. He has proven true before this and he deserves the vote of all who put righteousness before politics."

Springfield ministers are making a vigorous campaign for Mr. Shaw.

The Rev. G. S. S. Hollins, pastor of Hope Congregational Church, in speaking of the interest taken in the prohibition cause in Springfield, said:

"With many others I have broken away from the Republican party, because we feel that that party does not stand for the vital principles so essential for its true prosperity. It is merely a political party and does not stand for those matters which will help to benefit the nation.

"Why didn't the Republican party put in a plank for prohibition or for suffrage. These were turned down by Mr. McCall, who said such planks would be calamitous to the welfare of the party.

"I am glad to stand up as a Christian minister and say I shall vote for Mr. Shaw and prohibition. Prohibition is one of the most important issues before the country today.

"Prohibition is not an economic question like banking interests. It is a perfectly moral question.

Dry Goods Men Talk Over Premium Plan

The value of giving premiums with merchandise as a business getter was discussed at the annual dinner of the New England Dry Goods Association.

Henry C. Brino, president of a premium contracting company and one of the speakers, said:

"At the present time 2,000 stores in Massachusetts are using a premium inducement for two reasons. First as a cash inducement, the premium representing a cash value either in merchandise or by redemption and secondly, as a form of stimulating trade. Premiums are an advantage to the storekeeper because they are a form of extending the quality of the service. I claim, and can substantiate the fact, that premiums are the basis for modern business men to build up business. It is the mightiest weapon the business man has with which to fight competition."

H. Pitchett, editor of the Dry Goods Economist of New York, said:

"Intelligent service is the key word of business today. Ought not progressive merchants to creep above the expensive practice of giving premiums? The premium is given to attract new trade. Perhaps it does at first. But in time it becomes an evil instead of an advantage. The drawback is that the regular customers must also be supplied with premiums, thus increasing expense. There is nothing morally wrong with giving premiums. The chief question is one of expediency. An attractive store, a good quality of goods and scientific advertising are three principles hard to beat."

War Jumps Cost of Harvard Breakage

Breakage charges in the Harvard laboratories will be at least 25 per cent. higher this year, because of the scarcity of laboratory supplies in this country, due to the British blockade of German ports.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Anita King, whose name and face are known to thousands of those who follow the moving pictures, arrived in New York Tuesday evening, completing a drive across the continent in a Kissel Kar. Miss King drove the entire distance and is probably the only woman who has a record of having driven a car across the continent all by herself. In speaking of this performance George H. Lawrence of the local Kissel Kar Company said: "It speaks in the highest terms, not only of the driver, but of the car that can cover 3,231 miles in the hands of a woman."

Harry Fosdick, of the Wentworth-Fosdick Company, distributors of the Dort car, returned yesterday from an extensive trip through New Hampshire, Vermont and New York. His trip through the Adirondack Mountains, he says, was the most beautiful outing that he has experienced in all his touring, and he certainly has done some touring.

* * *

F. C. Graves of the Packard Motor Car Company recently made an interesting trip in a Packard twelve when he drove it from Buffalo, N. Y., to this city. Mr. Graves took the delivery of the car at the Packard plant in Detroit, loaded it aboard the boat, and upon arriving at Buffalo started over the road, coming all the way without any trouble whatsoever.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were still strong in the last hour, but the list ranged below its highest for the day. War news was an adverse factor. It is said Europeans now need 100,000,000 pounds of copper and that one of the biggest buying movements for a year is imminent. Sales within ten days are estimated by a large producer to aggregate 80,000,000 pounds.

At 2:15 | New York gains included Allis-Chalmers ¼, American Can ¼, U. S. Steel 1¾, Car & Foundry 1, Baldwin ¾, Bethlehem 46. Colorado Fuel 2¾, Distillers 3¾, General Motors 21¾, Goodrich 1¾, U. S. Rubber 1, Great Northern Ore ¾, Studebaker 15¾, Westinghouse ¾, Willys-Overland, ex-dividend, ½, Maxwell 4, Central Leather 2½, Baltimore & Ohio ¼, Lehigh Valley ¼, N. Y. Central ½, Anaconda ¾, Chino ¾, Utah ¾ and Inspiration ¾.

Among declines were Rock Island 2¾, Union Pacific ¼, St. Paul ¼, Northern Pacific ¼, New Haven ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Northern Pacific ¼, General Electric 1 and Mexican Petroleum ¾.

Among gains in Boston were Woolen common 4½, preferred 2½, American Zinc ⅝, Butte & Sperior ¼, New Haven ¼ and U. S. Smelting ¼.

Declines included Boston & Maine 1½, Alaska Gold ¼, Calumet & Arizona ¾, Granby ½, Isle Royale ½, North Butte ¾, Mohawk ¾, Tamarack ⅝, Trinity ⅝ and United Fruit ¼.

BETHLEHEM'S GREAT RISE.

Bethlehem was the spectacular feature in New York, opening at the new high of 550, an advance of 21, and going to 599⅝ on the next transaction. This was a raise of 70⅝ from yesterday's closing. Transactions in this issue were not large, but its great gain caused a sensation on the exchange and elsewhere. Central Leather Industrial Alcohol, American Woolen, Studebaker, Maxwell and Willys-Overland sold at record high prices. At 87⅝ U. S Steel was at its highest since 1910. Distillers was at its highest since 1907. The list averaged higher at the start and there was no set action worth considering up to afternoon. The volume of business was a little larger than yesterday. It was not so well distributed, however, more interest was manifested by the public. Sentiment seemed to be strongly bullish. Business statements are generally encouraging. Baltimore and Ohio reports an increase in net operating revenue of $599,344 for Sept. and of $1,891,623 for three months. There is more domestic demand for steel products. Roads are about to place large equipment orders. It is understood. Foreign exchange continued dull and was weaker. The Bank of England made the best report in many months. Its proportion of reserve to liabilities is 30.97 per cent, compared with 27.14 a week ago. Regarding Bethlehem, a local financial publication says $606 a share for 1000 shares was offered last night but the holder asked $1000 a share.

ATLANTIC GULF ACTIVE HERE.

Atlantic Gulf issues were the feature of Boston market, both common and preferred selling at record high prices. At opening the Boston market was very dull but firmer in tone, with little business in coppers or zincs. It broadened later, but was irregular as to prices, with copper weakest. There continued to be a gratifying increase in local trading in New York stocks, particularly U. S. Steel. Much interest was shown in Inspiration and American Woolen.

More foreign demand for copper is reported. Europeans are paying from 13½ to 13¾ cents a pound. Home consumers are backward in buying and may have to pay higher prices when forced to fill requirements. Spelter is quiet. American Smelting has advance load from 4.50 to 4.75 cents. In London spot copper declined 2s. 6d., futures 1s. and electrolytic was unchanged. Lead was off 2s. 9d. and spelter was up 10s.

FATHER BRINGS ELOPERS BACK HERE TO WED

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 21.—After waiting here the legal limit of five days to be married, the wedding arrangements of a Boston couple giving the names of William R. Connolly, Jr., and Mary G. Danahy were interrupted just as they were about to be married today, when the would-be groom glanced up and saw his father in the city clerk's office.

Young Connolly bolted out the door. The father and two policemen chased him, but he outdistanced them and disappeared. Then the weeping bride-to-be told where she thought Connolly might be found. Investigation showed her guess was correct, and Connolly was brought back from his hiding place to the city clerk's office.

The father delivered the following matrimonial ultimatum: "Come back to Boston and be married. Boston is the place to be married in and I will promise to interfere no more."

This the couple agreed to do and

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

To the Tax Payers of Boston

IT is estimated that five billion dollars in property in stocks, bonds, etc., escape taxation in Massachusetts each year.

Boston receives today $5,400,000 from this class of property. If the tax dodgers who controlled the Republican Legislature last year succeed in putting through the so-called three mill tax WITHOUT COMPULSORY DISCLOSURE, the amount Boston will receive is estimated to fall to $1,080,000—a loss of more than four millions a year.

If Governor Walsh's plan goes through, Boston will receive four million, two hundred thousand dollars more than she now receives and eight millions more than she would receive under the tax dodgers' scheme.

Four million dollars would pay the salaries of all the school teachers in Boston. It would pay the cost of upkeeping the streets and sewers. It would pay the interest on the city debt proper. It would pay the cost of the fire and police departments. It would pay the cost of all the hospitals, the parks, the libraries and the public institutions of the city. It would reduce the tax rate in Boston almost $3.00.

You remember the five hundred thousand dollars which the trustees of the Shaw estate tried to cheat the city out of three years ago and almost succeeded. This was only ONE estate. This sort of thing is going on all the time in Massachusetts. Governor Walsh's plan of equalizing taxation and making all men equal before the law, would save every city in the State as much proportionally as it would save Boston.

The Republican orators are talking about high taxes, but they do not talk about the real cause of high taxes. They do not tell us about this tax dodging, and they do not propose to stop it. What they want to stop are old age pensions, workingman's compensation, mother's pensions and other social welfare measures that most of the civilized world has already adopted and which Massachusetts is now belatedly headed towards.

The True Spirit of the South

IT is gratifying to friends of the Southern people all over the country to note the splendid spirit in which the South has weathered the financial cotton storm of last Winter and now fronts the coming Winter with confidence and rare good cheer.

The Southern people have manifested in this economic crisis the same unconquerable spirit which moved their miracle of recuperation from the desolation of the Civil War.

It was, indeed, a sombre prospect which fronted the Southern people—producer and consumer—when the European war closed the ports of trade to nearly one-third of the South's great staple crop, reduced the price of cotton from thirteen cents to six cents a pound, left more than three million bales stranded on the market and the Southern farmer facing positive want in his home and in his fields. But the Southern farmer, and the Southern business man who supplies the farmer, rallied with such courage and helpfulness to the crisis that banks adjusted their loans with due consideration, the common sense of the situation appealed to the teachable spirit of the farming man, the acreage of cotton was wholesomely reduced and the fertile acres of the South were fed fat with the food crops and diversified products which make for independence.

Today the South sends word to the world that she will only have ten million bales of cotton for sale this year against fifteen million bales last year, and that she expects a good price for those ten million bales and has made preparations with her financial backers to hold these ten million bales until she does get a good price.

Better still, the demand for cotton all over the world is rising. The munition plants of Europe are clamorous for it. Our own stimulated factories are able and willing to take every bale that the South has, even if the conditions of Europe should not offer any market whatever.

The South's cotton for 1915-16, the bedrock of her ancient prosperity, is safe and independent.

And the South, having fought through these dark days without government help, where other sections have had government help, and without whining or despairing, is now jubilant, triumphant, independent as a wood sawyer and fronting a splendid and richly deserved prosperity.

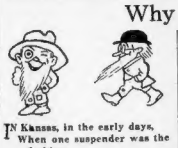
Why There Are No More Whiskers in Kansas



IN Kansas, in the early days,
When one suspender was the fashion,
The winds went tunefully their ways,
For whiskers were the farmer's passion.
Alfalfas were the outward sign
Of agricultural decorum;
All those who fed the lowing kine
Or husked the golden pumpkin wore 'em.

BUT, when arrived the Flivver car,
Amidst that section of the nation,
The farmers found that whiskers are
A seven-cylinder vexation.
With all a driver's varied work
They had a way of interfering;
They'd stall the motor with a jerk
Or jam the wheel and gum the steering.

WHEN, in some swampy, muddy spot,
A farmer found repairs essential,
Somehow his whiskers alway got
Entangled with the differential,
Or, when a' blowout he'd repaired,
He'd notice, with a burst of ire,
That half his whiskers were ensnared
For keeps between the rim and tire.

AS time wore on more cars arrived,
The shipments came in unabated,
And such few whiskers as survived
Were badly mutilated.
Till now the rustic Kansan's face
Is stern and smooth and highly polished;
The State of Kansas is a place
Where whiskers have been quite abolished.

"Thou Shalt Not Flirt," Mandate for Wedded

Dalliance of Those Who Find Matrimony Dull Leads to Disaster

By Dorothy Dix

THIS is the eighth commandment of matrimony:

Thou shalt not flirt with other women, or roll thine orbs at the man with whom thou fox-trotteth, for jealousy is as cruel as the grave, and the short cut to Reno.

One of the favorite amusements of both men and women who find matrimony dull and monotonous, is to engage in what they call harmless flirtation. Which is as if one exploited an innocuous stick of dynamite or a frolicsome viper.

Now, the married flirts are not necessarily conscienceless villains. Neither are they always traitors, or even really untrue to the partners of their bosoms. They are merely bored. They are victims to the curse of domesticity, which robs married life of all its illusions, strips from it its pink chiffons, and leaves it bare and bald and commonplace.

Loves His Wife, But—

In his heart a man may still think his Matilda Jane a model of all the virtues, and the pattern of what a good wife and mother and housekeeper should be. If he had to marry, he would marry her over again.

BUT—

Well, there is no allure in making love to your own wife when she listens with half her ear to your impassioned vows and the other ear and a half cocked to hear the baby cry. There's no thrill in sending her favorite flowers to a woman who would rather have the price to go on a new pair of shoes. There's no glamour of romance in having a little dinner somewhere with the lady who has the legal right to face you across the table three hundred and sixty-five mornings and evenings a year.

And the woman who is bored with the eternal roast beef and boiled potatoes of matrimony, and whose palate cries out for something with a little more pep and ginger in it, is tempted along the primrose path of flirtation by pretty much the same impulses as her husband is. She, too, is a-hungered for romance, and, more than that, she is beset by a devilish fear that torments her and will not let her rest.

Her husband has quit making love to her. He has ceased paying her compliments. He treats her with as little sense of her being a woman as if she were a feminine mummy of the time of the Ptolemys. This raises a horrid suspicion in her breast. "Am I old and ugly already? Do I no longer attract men? Have I thrown away my bait or lost it?" she questions of her mirror.

Disaster the End

Whatever the reason of the flirtations of married folks, however, there is but one end to them, and that is disaster. You cannot play with the fires of passion without getting burnt.

This is especially true of women. A woman's flirtation may not be skin-deep in sentiment. It may have been inspired by the most fleeting impulse of vanity, just a whim to see if her eyes had lost the goo-goo trick of her girlhood. She may have merely written and received a silly note or two or had a cup of harmless tea at a restaurant. Her soul and her slate may be absolutely clean, and in reality she may still hold her husband as far above the man she is flirting with as the stars are above the earth.

Nevertheless she is running the risk of wrecking her life and home. Thousands of women have been damned for just so little. She is miring the hem of her garments, and there will not be lacking those who will point out the stain and call her husband's attention to it. And she can never, never, never explain. And nobody will ever, ever, ever believe the truth. Least of all will her husband believe it.

When a married woman flirts it generally ends in divorce for her. When a married man flirts it doesn't end so often in divorce, for necessity forces wives to forgive things in their husbands that husbands do not have to forgive in their wives; but it ends in broken hearts, just the same.

There is no safe flirtation in which married people can indulge. All the ways of dalliance are closed to them, and they stray over the bars at their peril. Therefore, say to Cupid when he comes whispering in your ear, "Get thee behind me, Satan, for I partake no more of romance, except of the well-known domestic brand that is made at home."

Thus shall you keep out of trouble and safe within the fold, for this is the eighth commandment of matrimony: THOU SHALT NOT FLIRT WITH OTHER WOMEN, OR ROLL THINE ORBS AT THE MAN WITH WHOM THOU FOX-TROTTETH, FOR JEALOUSY IS AS CRUEL AS THE GRAVE, AND THE SHORT CUT TO RENO.

Cocoon

By Jane McLean

MY heart is a tiny part of me,
But its dreams are strangely cold:
And sometimes within the soul of me
That clamors for utterance wild and free
Is warm with the glint of gold.

And dreams that are colorful and bright,
That drift to the heart of me,
Slip out ere I understand them quite;
For my heart is a cold heart, chaste and white,
Like unto a nunnery.

But the fire in the passionate soul of me,
That burns with its colors deep,
Must one day touch with its mystery
The cold and passionless heart of me
That is now so fast asleep.

In-Shoots

People who never travel always seem to have the best knowledge of the railroad time table.

During the engagement a girl seldom sees but one man. But after marriage she has been known to look around and make comparisons.

When a fellow feels blue things usually look yellow.

Blubbering sympathy is seldom more than skin deep.
